Poland Will Receive Big Sector of Germany Churchill Announces

By PHIL AULT
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, Feb. 27.—(BUP)—Prime Minister Churchill said today that Poland will be given Upper Silesia, Danzig, the greater part of East Prussia, and a "long Baltic sea front."

To compensate for territory yielded to Russia in the east, Poland also will receive such additional German territory east of the Oder river as may be decided at the peace conference, Churchill told a packed House of Commons.

He said Poland would be granted the "greater part of East Prussia to the west of Koenigsberg', indicating that Russia may retain the capital of the Junkers province.

Curzon Line Will Be Frontier

Poland's eastern frontier, he reaffirmed, would be the Curzon line as drawn by an Allied commission in 1919 and "including, of course, the exclusion of Lwow from Poland."

Churchill said he had received "perfect assurances" from both President Roosevelt and U.S. Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius that the United States had no objection or complaint to steps Britain has taken in Italy.

"I am not prepared to accept suggestions from any quarter that Great Britain has fallen behind other victorious powers in taking a generous view toward Italy or that we nourish any design of power politics," he said.

Ready If Germany Collapses

Churchill said the United States has "entered deeply and constructively into the life and salvation of Europe."

"We have, all three, set our hands to far-reaching engagements at once practical and solemn," he said in concluding his summary of the Crimean conference.

"United, we have the unchallengeable power to lead the world to prosperity and freedom. The great powers must seek to serve."

He spoke for an hour and 50 minutes, broken by an hour for lunch.

Everything is ready for the surrender or collapse of Germany, he said, but he gave no hint of when either might be expected.

Churchill defended the Curzon line fixed by the Crimean conference for the Polish-Russian boundary as "just and right". He denied that "force or fear" played a part in British and American concurrence in the Soviet proposal for the boundary.

He broke his speech at 1:15 p.m. (6:15 a.m. MDT) for lunch.

OUTLINES PROGRAM

Calling for a strong vote of confidence in his government's commitments at the Crimean conference, Churchill also said:

1—Poland's future is in its own hands "with the single limitation that they (the Poles) must honestly follow in harmony with their Allies a policy friendly to Russia".

2—Britain will continue to recognize the Polish exile government in London until Britain considers the new provisional government pro-

Russian Army Smashes German Defences In Central Pomerania

By ROBERT MUSEL
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, Feb. 27—(BUP)—Marshal Stalin announced tonight that the Red Army had broken through the defences of central Pomerania and smashed 43 miles westward into the heart of the German province.

Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossoxsky's Second White Russian Army wheeled westward from the old Polish corridor and plunged within 29 miles fo the Baltic coast in a drive to trap the German defenders of East Pomerania, northwestern Poland and the Danzig free state.

The Red Army offensive, quiet since the western onrush to the Oder, erupted in blitzgrieg pattern again with Rokossovsky's four-day spurt at a pace of more than 10 miles a day.

Six hours after the German high command acknowledged the Pomeranian breakthrough, Marshal Stalin issued a special order of the day confirming the Nazi report.

BREAK RESISTANCE

He said Rokossovsky's forces "broke enemy resistance" in the Pomeranian border area near the Polish corridor town of Konatzyny, and in four days swept through a number of German towns, keys to the defence of Pomerania.

Rokossovsky's forces captured Bublitz, 29 miles from the Baltic and 17 miles north of Neustettin, Hammerstein, 10 miles east of Neustettin, and several other towns.

Stalin called them "important centres of communications and powerful strongholds in the German defences".

A Moscow dispatch reported a great tank battle raging somewhere between the Neisse and Dresden. This would mean that Marshal Ivan S. Konev had shattered the Neisse line and thrown powerful armored forces into a drive toward the Saxony capital of Dresden.

NEARING BALTIC

A German communique said a Russian penetration northwestward in Central Pomerania had carried to the towns of Bublitz, 29 miles from the Baltic coast, and Rummelsburg, 17 miles to the East.

Bublitz is 17 miles north of Neustettin, turntable of the German defences in central Pomerania. It is a big rail and highway junction, as is Rummelsburg, to the east.

The Germans also reported that the Russians had seized a bridgehead across the Neisse river, the last major water barrier southeast of Berlin.

In Legislature

Member Urges Construction Of New Highway

Immediate construction of a highway from Two Hills to Bruderheim was urged in the Legislature Tuesday afternoon by Michael Ponich (SC-Vegreville), when he spoke in the throne speech debate.

The Vegreville member also requested the government to consider legislation allowing plebiscites in rural municipalities on the question of compulsory membership in a farm organization.

Delivering his maiden speech in the assembly, Mr. Ponich said the Two Hills-Bruderheim highway had been requested by the Two Hills Board of Trade, as well as many residents of the area. The request had been forwarded in a resolution.

Commending the present government on its road building program, the speaker said for the first time in the history of Alberta—and for that matter in the history of Canada—this is the only government that has been able to show the citizens of Alberta that it is possible to build good roads.

CONGRATULATIONS

"I am proud to say our government does not build political roads and highways, but roads and highways for all the people concerned", said Mr. Ponich. "I wish to congratulate the ministers concerned for their democratic methods in handling the affairs of their departments".

"Even during a period when there is such an acute shortage of specialized labor, when the machine companies find it an impossibility to provide proper road equipment and parts, this government found it feasible to not only maintain the roads previously built but to build new ones; resurface old ones and gravel roads to provide farming and other industries with more and better communications".

On the farm organization compulsory membership question, Mr. Ponich said, "since my election to this house, my office was flooded with resolutions from various Alberta Farmers' Union locals in my constituency, demanding that Alberta farmers be given the privilege of organizing a union whereby all farmers would be obliged to become members of such a union.

BY AMENDMENT

"This they profess can be done by having an amendment to the Municipal Districts Act passed by the Legislature, making provision for the right to hold a plebiscite in various municipal districts. I hope that the minister of municipal affairs (Hon. C. E. Gerhart) will give this question his full consideration."

Easter Holiday Period of Week Granted Schools

The one-week Easter holiday period will return to Alberta schools this year, it was announced in the Legislature Monday by Hon. R. Earl Ansley, minister of education. The holiday will begin with Good Friday, March 30, and schools will re-open Monday, April 9.

The minister also announced the summer holiday period this year would be from July 6 to Sept. 10, with provision for children at rural points to be given extra time away from classes in order to assist in harvest work. This holiday extension is to apply only when weather is suitable for harvesting.

FIRST ADDRESS

Making his first address in the Legislature as minister of education, Mr. Ansley said the Easter holiday was being given this year in response to "strong requests from various sections of the public and members of the Assembly." The Easter vacation was eliminated in 1943, when the summer vacation period was lengthened in order to provide student labor for harvest operations.

The minister said last summer schools did not open until after

Front Dispatches Indicate Nazis Fleeing Across Rhine

By BOYD D. LEWIS
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

PARIS, Feb. 27.—(BUP)—Allied tanks and troops stormed the Erft river line eight miles from Cologne today and field dispatches indicated the Germans were fleeing in disorder across the Rhine.

The entire German battle screen on the Rhineland plain was dissolving into a confused, chaotic mass before the scythe-like sweep of the First and Ninth armies.

Armored and infantry forces of both armies were on the Erft and perhaps across it on a broad assault arc west and northwest of Cologne, and Field Marshal Sir Bernard Montgomery's other Ninth Army elements to the north swept forward ten miles in as many hours to the rim of the Ruhr valley.

In the north, Canadian First Army forces overran the German strongpoint of Eudem in a southward power drive and enemy sources admitted the bastion of Calcar had fallen to Gen. H. D. G. Crerar's troops.

Security Blackout Clamped On

At least 15 towns were captured by the First Army against light resistance today, including the Erft river strongpoint of Sindorf, nine miles west of Cologne. Other First and Ninth Army columns were on the river to the north and south, with the closest approach to Cologne apparently by First Army units on the main road from Dueren.

Indicating that German communications on the battlefield had broken down completely, Ninth Army headquarters announced that a strict security news blackout had been imposed on the army's forward units until further notice.

As the Ninth Army columns drove northeast, Canadian First Army spearheads were forcing their way southward, from the Kleve-Goch area after breaking the Hochwald line, last German defence line between Gen. H. D. G. Crerar's forces and the Ruhr valley.

High-ranking officers with the U.S. First Army on the Erft expressed the belief that the Germans were abandoning their entire line west of the Rhine in a race to escape the horde of men and armor closing in on their rear.

Many officers predicted, however, that the Nazis would leave a doomed rear guard in Cologne to

Short Session Of Parliament Seen in March

By CHESTER BLOOM
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, Feb. 27—Indications, not authoritative, but derived from usually good sources of government information here, are fairly clear that the government intends to call a short session of parliament about the middle of March.

This session, aimed to last only some five or six weeks to the date of parliament's expiry on April 17, will be merely for the purpose of voting supply and war appropriations.

A lengthy meeting of the cabinet council is in session today but it is understood the chief purpose is to determine the government support price of wheat for the current crop year. So far as can be ascertained, there is no indication that the present support price of $1.25 for No. 1 Fort William will be altered for the 1945 crop.

Fund to Permit Vancouver Boy Have Operation

VANCOUVER, Feb. 27—(CP)—Parents of five-year-old Colin Gray, who must undergo a difficult heart operation before his sixth birthday, June 28, if his life is to be saved, said today they had received a letter from Dr. Robert Jones of Los Angeles advising them to take the boy to California for consultation.

Colin's heart is four times normal size which prohibits the proper circulation and renders his legs and feet useless.

The child's father, Bob Gray, an employee of a lumber company here, said his wife and her mother, Mrs. A. Pollard, plan leaving here with Colin by train Wednesday for Los Angeles.

The trip has been made possible by donations to a fund sponsored by a Vancouver newspaper.

Colin's parents were told earlier this month by Vancouver medical experts that unless the operation was carried out before his sixth birthday, he would not live.

They advised that only two surgeons might successfully perform the operation. One of them is Dr. Jones.

Half of Japs' Iwo Garrison Knocked Out

By FRANK TREMAINE
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

GUAM, Feb. 27—(BUP)—Field dispatches said today that U.S. Marines have knocked out half the Japanese garrison of 20,000 in battle across both Iwo's airfields to within a little more than a mile and a half of the north coast.

(Japanese Domei dispatch said the Marines opened a "major offensive against our main positions" in central and northern Iwo Monday following an all night bombardment by navy guns. "Sanguinary battles" were said to be raging).

AWAITING NEWS

The battle of Iwo went into its ninth day while Pacific Fleet headquarters awaited word from famed Task Force 58 on the extent of destruction wrought in its third carrier-plane raid in 10 days Sunday on Tokyo, 750 miles north of the embattled island.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander of the Pacific Fleet, announced in a communique early today that 741 more Japanese bodies had been counted on Iwo, bringing the number of known dead to 3,568 for the first eight days of the battle.

However, as many more enemy dead probably still remained behind enemy lines, British United Press war correspondent Mac R. Johnson, aboard the invasion flagship off Iwo, said 10,000 Japanese were believed dead or seriously wounded.

MANILA, Feb. 27—(BUP)—American forces secured control today of the western end of the central Philippines water route with the virtually complete occupation of Verde Island off the southern tip of Luzon.

Units of the 24th division, veterans of the bitter Leyte campaign, landed on Verde Sunday and took the Japanese by complete surprise.

Seizure of Verde came within five days after other American troops captured Capul and Biri islands in the San Bernardino strait at the eastern end fo the water passageway, between Luzon and Samar.

The water way is the main navigational route through the central Philippines for shipping from Manila bay to the United States.

His communique also disclosed that paratroopers on Corregidor had cleaned out all but about one mile of the eastern tip of the island.

Expects City Show Surplus About $13,000

A surplus of between $12,000 and $13,000 will result from the City of Edmonton's 1944 operations, it was disclosed by an official of the city comptroller's office Tuesday. Final audit of the 1944 balance sheet has not been completed, but officials do not expect any material changes when the final figures for the year are completed.

In addition to the estimated surplus approximately $3,000,000 will be carried over in utility renewal reserve accounts and in general reserves. This represents projects authorized which were not carried out because of shortage of manpower and materials.

The carryover in the utility renewal reserve accounts totals $2,231,323, and in the general reserve accounts $850,000 approximately.

FOR CONSTRUCTION

It is anticipated that with renewal reserve account payments to be made during 1945, and appropriations on general account during the year that approximately $5,000,000 will be available for construction projects.

The barn will be located in Rossdale on the site of the old bithulitic paving plant near the river bank between the low level bridge and the old brewery building.

Council also concurred in the recommendation of the city commissioners that the first 200 homes to be built by Wartime Housing Ltd., under the terms of the contract for the erection of 400 houses here, be located in the Ritchie school district between 81 and 75 avenues, and 96 and 99 streets.

The homes will be for the exclusive occupancy of ex-service personnel and their dependents. Decision to place the homes in this district followed a conference Monday morning between city commissioners, school board officials and representatives of Wartime Housing Ltd.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 27.—Japan's been making the headlines again. They're really worried there now. Last week they had a thousand-plane naval attack on Tokyo. MacArthur sewed up Manila, and to climax it all the next day they gave Sinatra a new physical. Frankie spent all day singing, "Don't Fence Me In," from Governors Island. The morning he arrived for his physical they gave him a four-gun salute—well, it wasn't exactly a four-gun salute—Crosby stood outside clapping his hands together. It was really a big event. The day he went down they declared it a legal holiday—all the girls under 15 lowered their bobby socks to half-mast. I want to say a word on Frankie's behalf. It's not his fault he wasn't in the army long ago. Three times he started for his draft board and he would have made it too—but the girls kept whistling at him on his way down and the wind-drift carried him off his course. The reason Frankie's case has attracted so much attention is because it's the first time in the history of the army that anybody ever made the casualty list before he was inducted.

Raid Many Cities

2,500 Allied Planes Hit Deep Into Reich

By LEO S. DISHER
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, Feb. 27.—(BUP)—More than 2,500 RAF and American warplanes carried the war deep into Germany for the 15th straight day today, unloading a great weight of bombs on the Nazi rail centres of Leipzig, Halle and Mainz.

The American Air Force set the daylight bombardment in motion before mid-day with a 2,000-plane strike into Central Germany at Halle and Leipzig.

Hours later, another raiding fleet of more than 500 RAF Lancasters and Halifaxes followed through with a heavy attack on the Mainz railway yards on the middle reaches of the Rhine.

A smaller force of RAF heavies also bombed a benzol plant near Gelsenkirchen in the Ruhr valley.

More than 1,100 Flying Fortresses and Liberators crashed almost 3,000 tons of bombs on Leipzig, 85 miles southwest of Berlin, and the neighboring town of Halle. The rail networks of these two cities control the transport of most of Central Germany.

vided for in the Crimean declaration has been formed properly.

3—The Allies intend to take steps against Germany far more drastic and effective than those which followed the last war, including total disarmament, destruction of Nazism and militarism, swift punishment of war criminals, and elimination or control of industry capable of military production.

USE FORCE IF NEEDED

4—The world security organization envisioned by the Big Three will not shrink from the use of armies, navies and air forces against an "evil doer or an evil planner".

5—The war in Europe has been prolonged a "good many months" beyond what had been hoped for last fall, but American victories in the Pacific have advanced the peak period of the Far Eastern war.

6—Simultaneous prosecution of the war in Europe and in the Far East has confronted the Allies with a greater shipping shortage than ever before.

7—Mr. Churchill and President Roosevelt flew to the Crimea after a three-day conference at Malta at which they approved joint plans for the "great operations now developing on the western front" and for the campaigns against Japan.

NEED STRONG VOTE

An overwhelming vote of confidence in the government will strengthen Britain's position among her Allies, Churchill told the packed house at the opening of a debate on the "Big Three" conference.

He conceded that the peak period of the war in Europe had been prolonged a "good many months" beyond what had been hoped last fall when the Allies were racing across France.

However, the peak period of the war against Japan has been advanced by American victories in the Pacific, he said.

He reported that "British and American missions conferred for three days on the prosecution of the European and Far Eastern wars at Malta en route to Yalta for the Crimean conference.

ALL IS FORESEEN

"If we were confronted tomorrow with the collapse of the German forces, there is nothing that has not been foreseen and arranged beforehand by the European advisory commission," he said.

Churchill defended the Big Three's decision to meet without France.

"All three great powers felt . . . that while they were responsible for bearing to an overwhelming degree the main brunt and burden of the conduct of the war and policy intimately connected with operations, they could not allow any restriction to be placed upon their rights to meet together as they deemed necessary in order effectively to discharge their duties to the common cause."

At the same time, however, he said Britain wished to see a strong France and strong French army.

MUST KEEP UNITY

He contended that any new world order should take into account the special responsibility of the great powers and should be so organized as not to compromise their unity or capacity for effective action at short notice.

"A world organization cannot be based on dictatorship of the great powers, however," he said. "It is their duty to preserve the world, not to rule it."

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee will represent Britain at the San Francisco conference, he revealed.

NO DIVISION

"The Crimea conference finds that Allies more closely united than ever before, both in military and political spheres," Churchill said.

"Let Germany recognize it is a futile hope for a division among the Allies and nothing can avert her utter defeat.

"Further resistance will be the cause of endless suffering. The Allies are resolved that Germany shall be totally disarmed, Nazism and militarism in Germany destroyed and war criminals justly and swiftly punished.

"German industry capable of military production shall be eliminated or controlled and Germany shall make compensation in kind to the utmost of her ability for the damage done to Allied nations."

He said the world security organization envisioned by the Big Three would differ from the League of Nations because it would not shrink from the use of force and arms against an "evil doer or an evil planner."

WILL BE CRUSHED

Germany will have a place in the family of nations, he said, only after all traces of Nazism and militarism have been "effectively and finally extirpated," he said.

As for Polish forces fighting under allegiance to the Polish exile government in London, Churchill said they were under British command.

He hoped as many as possible of these troops would return to Poland. Those not desiring to return, he said, might be offered citizenship in the British Empire, but he was unable to make a flat offer until he had consulted the Dominions.

Churchill and Stalin and Soviet leaders wished to live in "honorable friendship and equality with the western democracies".

"I feel also that their world is their bread", he said. "I have at no government which stands to its obligations more solidly than the Russian Soviet government. . . ."

By The Canadian Press

Following is a partial text of Mr. Churchill's remarks on the Arab world, Greece and the general post-war outlook:

Although we did not reach a solution of the problems of the Arab world and of the Jewish people in Palestine, I have hopes that when the war is over good arrangements can be made for securing the peace and progress of the Arab world and generally of the Middle East and that Great Britain and the United States, which is taking an increasing interest in those regions, will be able to play a valuable part in proving the well-known maxim of the old free trader: "All legitimate interests are in harmony."

My discussions with the Emperor of Ethiopia raised no serious difficulty because an agreement for the next two years had already been reached as a result of the mission to Ethiopia which Lord de la Warr had just completed with much patience and address. . . .

We had the pleasure of a long discussion with President Shukri of Syria in which we did our utmost to enjoin a friendly attitude towards the French and to encourage the negotiation of a suitable settlement with the French affecting not only Syria but also the Lebanon.

VISIT TO ATHENS

On the way back from the Crimea to say goodbye to the President at Alexandria, the foreign secretary and I stopped at Athens. I must say from my point of view this was the highest spot of the whole journey. . . .

There is no subject in my recollection in which the policy of His Majesty's government has received more complete vindication (than on actions in Greece.) Nor has there been any on which greater prejudice and misrepresentation has been poured out against them in the United States, and with some assistance from this side.

All this was done with a wanton disregard of the ill-effects produced on the spot and the encouragement given to the resistance of the terrorists in Greece.

RESCUED CAPITAL

I am sure we rescued Athens from a horrible fate and I believe the Greek people will long acclaim our actions. Both militarily and politically, peace without vengeance has been achieved. A great mass of arms has been surrendered. Most of the prisoners and hostages have been restored. The great work of bringing in food and supplies have resumed its former activity. Public order and security are so established that UNRRA is about to resume its functions.

Here I must remark that the future of Greece is in their own hands. The Greeks must not expect that the whole process of their restoration can be accomplished by British labors or American assistance. . . .

The improvement of combined and collective work has been often asked for here in order to prevent avoidable divergences of view, and to concert the actions of the three great powers . . . the work of the three foreign secretaries showed itself to be so valuable, efficient and indispensable that its continuing collective activity was acclaimed by all.

TEMPORARY PLAN

It is, of course, only a temporary arrangement appropriate to these times of special stress when so heavy a burden—a military burden—is resting on the three great powers, and we may expect it eventually to merge in the larger and permanent organization which will be set up at San Francisco, once that organization is in full working order and the peace conference has finished its labors.

In the intervening period these meetings of the three foreign secretaries, to whom from time to time foreign secretaries of other countries will be added, will prove of undoubted advantage.

I must admit in this war I never felt so grave a sense of responsibility as I did at Yalta. In 1940 and 1941, when we in this island were all alone and invasion was so near, the actual steps we ought to take and our attitude towards them seemed plain and simple. If a man is coming across the sea to kill you, you do everything in your power to make sure he dies before he finishes his journey. That may be difficult, and it may be painful, but at least it is simple.

MUST FACE FACTS

Now we enter into a world of imponderables and at every stage self-sacrificing actions. It is a mistake to look too far ahead. Only one link in the chain of destiny can be handled at a time. I trust that the house will feel that hope has been powerfully strengthened by our meeting in the Crimea. The ties that bind the three great powers together and their mutual comprehension of each other have grown. The United States has entered deeply and constructively into the life and situation of Europe. We all three set our hands to far-reaching engagements of international and economic.

United, we have the unchallengeable power to lead the world to prosperity, freedom and happiness. The great powers must seek to serve and not to rule. United with other states both large and small, we may found a large world organization which, armed with ample power will guard the rights of all states, great or small, from aggression or from the gathering of the means of aggression.

I am sure that a fierce chance to open to mankind that they have known in recorded ages. The lights burn brighter and shine more broadly than before. Let us walk forward together.

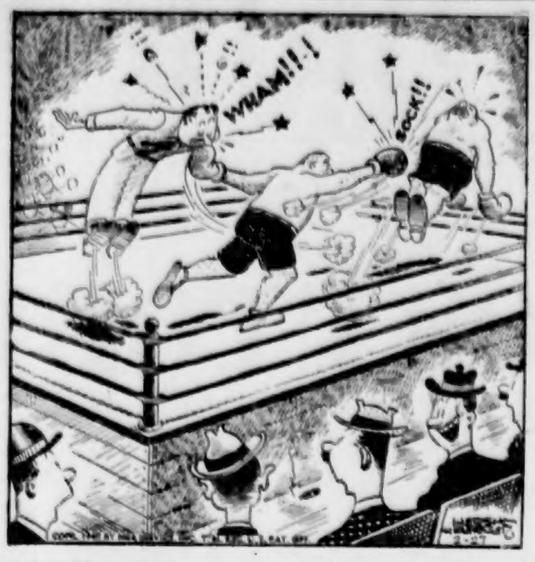

ANSWERS LABORITE

First to rise when Mr. Churchill finished, Arthur Greenwood, Labor party leader, termed the Prime Minister's speech "one of the most masterly" he has made and, while pledging his support, expressed some objection to the way the Polish question was handled.

"It is foreign to the principles of British justice for the fate of a nation to be decided in its absence and behind its back", Mr. Greenwood said.

Mr. Churchill replied "it was not possible to invite a Polish government to Yalta because one great power has recognized one government and the others recognized another, and it was absolutely necessary for us to adjust our view . . . before any invitations could be sent.

"What is happening now is that a government recognized by all the powers should be brought into being representative of the broad elements of Polish opinion like that that government is going to settle . . . the future course of affairs in Poland."

Known as RDX

Tell How Canadians Helped To Develop Super-Explosive

TORONTO, Feb. 27.—(CP)—The veil of official secrecy last night was lifted from the part played in development of RDX, the world's most powerful explosive, by Dr. George Wright, professor of chemistry at University of Toronto, and other Canadian scientists who helped establish the first manufacturing plant for the explosive in Canada.

Dr. Wright, working in co-operation with Dr. J. H. Ross and Dr. H. S. Sutherland of Montreal and Dr. W. E. Machmann of the National Defence Research Committee of the United States, added the final technique to a process that made possible continuous production of the sensitive super-explosive with a measure of safety.

They started work in 1940 and by 1941, had established the first factory in Canada at the University of Toronto. The same year 20 pounds of RDX, which stands for Research Department Explosive, were flown to England and approved by the British government. In January, 1942, the U.S. adopted the method and went into large-scale production.

Known chemically as cyclonite, RDX is 1.5 times as powerful as TNT and detonates 1.2 times as fast.

Both Canada and the U.S. now are producing and shipping thousands of tons of the explosive, using the method developed here.

Record Aerial Raids Continue Against Reich

panied the heavy bombers on the 15th straight day of bombing Germany in a record Allied winter offensive.

The record offensive against Germany continued through the night. RAF and RCAF Mosquito bombers crashed blockbusters into Berlin, stoking the fires kindled by nearly 2,000 American planes yesterday.

The Clandestine Radio Atlantic said the "highest fires ever seen in any German city" guided the night raiders to their objective.

HEAVY BOMB LOAD

More than 3,000 tons of bombs were dropped on Berlin yesterday in the heaviest daylight attack ever made on a German city.

The Stockholm newspaper Morgontidningen said the American raid lasted an hour and a half. "Great damage" was caused to "certain quarters," the dispatch said.

The attack was aimed primarily at the north Alexander Platz and Schoenecher stations, all within two miles of the centre of Berlin and among the main bottlenecks on the supply route to the Oder river front to the east.

Fourteen Convicts Escape U.S. Prison

WHITTIER, N.C., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Fourteen long-term prisoners drilled a hole through the brick wall of their cell block at a state prison camp near here and escaped last night. Sunday night at the Craggy camp near Asheville, approximately 70 miles from here, 16 prisoners escaped by cutting the bars of a window. One of the Craggy escapees was captured yesterday.

Steadies!

NORTHUMBERLAND, N.H., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Childhood sweethearts in Burns Corner, N.B., a half century ago, Dean C. Brewer, 76, of this city, and Mrs. Lavinia Allen, 68, of Augusta, Me., were married last night.

They told reporters: "we were steadies for some time."

They had moved away from New Brunswick and "hadn't seen each other for 60 years".

Short Session Of Parliament Seen in March

wheat growers and the coarse grain interests over this price. The wheat growers always press for a higher price; barley, oats and flax growers want the wheat price lowered in favor of higher support prices for the coarse grains. It is understood that Hon. J. G. Gardiner, minister of agriculture, is standing behind the maintenance of the present wheat price floor of $1.25, while the grain dealers are making a powerful drive for increased prices on the coarse grains.

This is the problem with which the cabinet council is wrestling today; that and also determination probably of the date of calling a short session. On the best authority, however, the question of a general election date will be dealt with; the final fixing of that date will be left in the inviolable repository of Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King's personal knowledge, revealed to no one for the present.

The secrecy which has surrounded, so far, the question of whether another session of parliament would be called before April 17, and the question of a general election date, has resulted in a daily flood of political rumors in the capital.

INTEREST IN ONTARIO

Interest lately has been directed to the Ontario provincial field, where a hot fight has been going on in the Ontario legislature between the minority Conservative government of Premier George Drew and the re-appointed Liberal opposition leader, Hon. Mitchell Hepburn. The attack led by Mr. Hepburn, aided by the CCF Ontario contingent, against Premier Drew's original threat to nullify in Ontario the federal family allowance act resulted in reports that the Drew government might be forced into an election. The combined Liberal and CCF forces could easily overturn Mr. Drew's government.

The result, however, has apparently been to cause Mr. Drew to backwater and explain that, after all, he is not opposed to federal family allowances. Later report now indicate that an Ontario election is unlikely, the Ontario Liberals and CCF's have been conducting what amounts to a war of nerves against Mr. Drew, or to use a frequent American political term, "needling" Mr. Drew, not with the intention of forcing an election, but to keep his Conservative party on the anxious seat.

A report also has been published in some western newspapers that Premier King intends making his usual winter vacation trip of a few weeks to a Virginia resort. The story is that the prime minister would take a short vacation beginning immediately before the short session of parliament is summoned in mid-March.

Well-Known Padre Is Visiting the City

Lt.-Col. G. E. Lambert, padre at the Christie Street Military hospital in Toronto, was a city visitor on Tuesday. While in Edmonton Lt.-Col. Lambert, who was wounded at the First Great War and suffered the loss of a leg, was conferring with Capt. E. B. Strange, padre at the military wing of the University hospital here. He was expected to leave the city Tuesday night.

Easter Holiday Period of Week Granted Schools

Oct. 1, at the request of the agriculture industry. "Because of wet weather, harvesting and threshing operations in most parts of the province continued through October, while in some districts north of Edmonton they lasted until well into November," he recalled.

"The result was just as disturbing to the work in the classroom as if school had commenced Sept. 1. Again, there has been a strong protest, particularly from the urban centres, against the operation of school until the middle of July."

CLOSE ON JULY 6

"Therefore, for the coming summer we are recommending that the schools shall close July 6 and reopen Sept. 10, with the understanding that a farmer will be permitted to keep his children out of school for the required work whenever the weather should permit the essential farming operations."

Mr. Ansley said the result of this regulation would vary with different localities.

"The student should return to school on the days during which such operations are temporarily delayed by rain," he stated. "Our department will be making detailed arrangements through the superintendents and the teacher in charge of each school in a manner which will assure the farmers of satisfactory results in this connection."

Mr. Ansley told the House there are 4,012 public school districts in Alberta, and during 1944 there were 2,852 in operation. Approximately 6,000 teachers were employed, and 28 private schools were recorded by the education department.

WORK INCREASED

During the last year work of the correspondence branch has increased three-fold, the minister stated. At the present time, over 60 teachers are employed by the branch, covering studies from grade 1 through high school.

Three more enlarged school divisions have been established since last fall, south of Lesser Slave Lake, south of Sturgeon Lake, and in the Fort Vermilion district. At present, there are 53 divisions operating, under the supervision of 46 superintendents. Five superintendents are with the armed services.

"To date, six town schools and 51 village schools have become a part of the administration of the enlarged division in which they are located," said Mr. Ansley. "This is done through a mutual agreement entered into between the local board and the divisional board. The advantages to all concerned which result from the inclusion of these town and village districts are many. The number of such agreements is rapidly increasing and is a move which our department looks upon with great favor."

The minister said the first composite high school in Alberta is now in operation at Grande Prairie under the administration of the divisional board of that district. The facilities are co-ordinated with the rehabilitation program for returned men at Grande Prairie. The latter is administered by department of education officials and financed by the Dominion government, while the former is financed on a 50-50 basis by the department and the Grande Prairie divisional board.

"We intend to give similar financial assistance at four or five other selected points during the coming year," said Mr. Ansley. "They will be located in areas of different industrial activity as experiments and demonstrations of courses which will be more practical in meeting the particular needs of the people in those communities."

As from midsummer, the entire teacher-training program will be administered by the faculty of education, University of Alberta, the minister announced.

Normal School buildings at Edmonton and Calgary will be placed at the disposal of the university, and Normal School instructors will be transferred to the university at the beginning of the fiscal year, their salaries to be paid by the university. The agreement provides for absolute control of policy by the education department, the Legislature was told.

"Our foremost educational problem is a financial one", Mr. Ansley stated. "Increased teachers' salaries are essential to obtaining the desired quality of instruction. To meet current demands the teacher must have more modern facilities at his disposal to do a successful job and develop an appreciation of his work so that it can become one of the most desirable vocations in life".

"There should be a modern high school plant of about $50,000 in value at numerous centres through the province, with ample school van facilities and up-to-date furniture. This all requires money".

All Men Share Grief

Tragedy Strikes as Veteran Comes Home From Conflict

CALGARY, Feb. 27. — (CP) — What was to have been a carefree homecoming for more than 130 Alberta veterans who arrived from overseas here yesterday was shadowed by gloom as nearly every soldier in the group shared in the personal tragedy that greeted one of their number.

Though they laughed and smiled and said how great it was to be home, the men showed an undercurrent of sadness that went unexplained to civilians until a husky, battle-hardened corporal bit savagely into a doughnut in the Red Cross reception centre and put into words what his comrades were feeling.

"Gee, it's tough," he muttered, "poor old Snooks."

Then came the story of a tragedy that loomed large in the group of men who had seen wholesale tragedy on the battlefronts. But this was different.

This was personal.

Snooks, was Gunner C. W. Snooks of Bowden.

Like the others he had qualified for rotation leave by service in Europe. He had earned his trip home — his first chance in years to see his wife and three children.

When his train reached Brandon, Man., late Sunday Snooks received a telegram.

Mrs. Snooks died last Wednesday at Olds. Burned and suffering from exposure as a result of a fire that burned the home of her father at Little Red Deer, Dec. 27, she suffered a relapse.

Gunner Snooks, already enroute from England, could not be reached and did not even know his wife was ill until he received the telegram Sunday.

American Units Within 8 Miles City of Cologne fight a suicidal delaying action in the ruins of what once was Germany's fourth city.

SHELLING COLOGNE

The First Army's big guns already were lobbing shells into Cologne, and tank columns fanning out through the Rhineland were sweeping up hundreds of prisoners hourly. By late afternoon today's bag of captives on the Ninth Army front alone had reached 1,500.

On the northern flank of the offensive line, Field Marshal Sir Bernard Montgomery's armored and infantry units of the Ninth Army, outflanked and all but encircled the industrial city of Muenchen-Gladbach, westernmost of the Ruhr factory towns.

Ten miles southeast of Muenchen-Gladbach, the Ninth Army reached the Erft river line some 16 miles northwest of Cologne. It captured Koenigshoven and the river village of Morken and began probing for a crossing on the direct road to the Rhine.

OTHERS ON ERFT

Other U.S. First Army forces farther south already were on the Erft on the military highway west of Dueren where the river bends back within about eight miles of Cologne.

Powerful armored elements of the Ninth Army were storming through Rhinedahlen five miles southwest of Muenchen-Gladbach, while other columns stabbed 10 miles northwest of Erkelenz in a wide end run that carried into Waldniel, 6½ miles west of Muenchen.

Still other forces were sweeping in on the factory city from positions about two miles to the west and southeast.

Panic and confusion were reported sweeping the German ranks and field dispatches said German civilians and police were fighting side by side with Nazi regulars in the front lines before Muenchen.

HUNDREDS OF TANKS

A BBC correspondent at Montgomery's headquarters said that a tremendous weight of British and American armor is at the disposal of the Allied commanders and hundreds of tanks were clanking into the flat country lying between the Roer and the Rhine.

Supreme headquarters reported that elements of the Ninth and 11th German Panzer Divisions reinforced the five divisions manning the Roer River line when the Allies struck last Friday.

The Germans show signs of disorganization and panic despite the reinforcement, staff sources said.

GERMAN ADMISSION

Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, German military commentator, admitted that the Allies had driven to the Erft River, and said the river valley north of Elsdorf, due west of Cologne, was a scene of an "embittered struggle."

In the north, Crerar's United Kingdom and Canadian tanks and infantry cracked open the last belt of Siegfried line forts astride the Rhine-Maas corridor and broke through below Uedem, 22 miles from the Ruhr.

Crerar threw more than 200 tanks into a battle which smashed German resistance.

FRONT FALLING APART

The entire German battlefront west of the Rhine was disintegrating into a confused, chaotic mass and field dispatches indicated onrushing Anglo-American forces might already have won a breakthrough that could put them on the banks of the Rhine in a matter of hours.

More than 6,500 Germans surrendered on the entire western front in the past 24 hours, most of them to the First and Ninth Armies, swelling the Allied prisoner bag to about 11,000 in 48 hours.

An order of the day by Gen. Crerar to men of the Canadian First Army said "their offensive between the Maas and the Rhine had given valuable aid to the American drive across the Ruhr by pinning down reserves the enemy might have sent to that part of the front."

Six armored and infantry columns of the American First and Ninth armies were sweeping down on the Erft River on a 15-mile front that carried within a mile or less of the narrow stream by dawn today.

NEAR FACTORY CITY

Farther north, other Ninth Army forces, including United Kingdom formations stabbed to within seven miles of Muenchen-Gladbach, westernmost factory city of Germany's Ruhr Valley, bringing Hitler's last great arsenal under direct artillery fire for the first time.

Far to the south, Lt. Gen. Geo. S. Patton's rampaging Third Army poised a new flanking threat to the Nazis' hard-pressed Rhineland defences.

The Americans on that sector broke across the Nims River line and stabbed forward almost six miles to the Kyll River, last big barrier short of the Moselle Valley leading to the Rhine. Patton's men farther south reached the Moselle Valley 5½ miles below Trier and about 60 miles from Cobienz.

FLOOD OF POWER

On the U.S. First and Ninth Army line before Cologne, the Allied high command was pouring in a flood of guns and armor in a supreme bid to pin the bulk of Germany's western divisions against the bridgeless Rhine and destroy them there.

The First and Ninth armies hammered out gains of as much as five miles yesterday all along their combined front, now broadened to more than 35 miles by flanking thrusts to the north and south.

At the pivotal centre of the line, infantry and supporting armor drove straight down the superhighway linking Dueren and Cologne to capture Blatzheim, 12 miles west of Cologne. Late dispatches said they pushed on another three miles or more overnight to the Kerpen area where they were only a mile from the reft.

USE LONG TOMS

Fast-moving tank and tank-destroyer groups were riding out in front of the Americans, encircling town after town and holding the confused German garrisons until the infantry arrived to clear them out.

At the centre of the assault front, giant 155-millimeter Long Toms of the First Army poured shells into the ruins of Cologne, Germany's fourth city, and fast-rolling tank columns were probing the Erft line in preparation for a thrust across to the Rhine.

The Germans were known to have strong defensive positions along the east bank of the Erft, but it was becoming increasingly questionable whether they could pull back enough of their demoralized units from the river's west bank to make a major stand there.

CLEAR ERKLENZ

Vieing with the spectacular breakthrough before Cologne was the march of the northern wing of Field Marshal Montgomery's Ninth Army to the rim of the Ruhr valley.

British and American troops and armor cleared the big road hub of Erklenz after only a brief street fight yesterday and plunged almost six miles north along the main road to Muenchen-Gladbach.

Early today they were battling through Rheindahlen, five miles southwest of the factory city.

Breaking Point Of German Army Discipline Seen

NEW YORK, Feb. 27. — The Stockholm newspaper Expressen said in a dispatch reported yesterday to the office of war information that a four-hour fight occurred in Copenhagen Saturday between German troops, largely Austrian, from Norway and occupation troops in Denmark. The paper said the fight was "an interesting symptom of the impending dissolution of the German Army and the first sure sign that the Wehrmacht's famous discipline and morale are approaching the breaking point."

authorized for 1945. They include a paving program by the city engineer's department totalling approximately $600,000. The major items of this program are the paving of the road from the foot of McDougall Hill to the Saskatchewan Drive and 109 street intersection across the Fifth street bridge, and the paving of the Highlands street car route east of 97 street for trolley bus operations.

Assent has been given also for construction of a $200,000 addition to the main telephone exchange. Demolition of the Labor hall and the gasoline service station on the southwest corner of 102 avenue and 100 street will start on April 1, with construction of this building to be completed by October.

City council Monday night authorized building of central trolley bus barns on Rossdale flats, the cost of which will be approximately $200,000.

THREE OTHER PROJECTS

Three projects were authorized recently by council for extensions at the Royal Alexandra hospital. They include a new power house, a 50-bed hospital for treatment of chronic and aged patients. The estimated cost of the three projects is $250,000.

Work on the extension of the water purification plant at the power house will be continued this year. This work was started in 1944, but lack of materials and manpower held up completion of the job. There is approximately $750,000 of the work to be done yet.

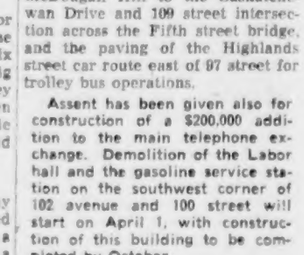

All the projects are subject to the availability of manpower and materials, Mayor John W. Fry stated Tuesday.

The action of the Chilean delegation followed a canvass of opinion which showed that any steps toward gaining Canadian adhesion to the Pan-American Union was inopportune.

Canadian Armor Defied Mud in Great Attack

By CHARLES LYNCH

WITH THE CANADIAN TROOPS SOUTH OF CALCAR, Germany, Feb. 27.—(Reuters)—Gen. Crerar, commander of the 1st Canadian Army, defied thick mud yesterday and committed his armor in great strength in a bid to break through the final belt of the Siegfried line defences between the Rhine and the Maas rivers.

As the resumed offensive gathered momentum, some of the tanks—big Shermans—sank hull down in the mud and became as helpless to move as if they had shells through them.

Last night, things were going well. There was an atmosphere of confidence here.

The attack itself was like a surrealists nightmare.

START OF ATTACK

The pre-dawn darkness, which had been broken by gun flashes, was suddenly pierced by glare of great searchlights beating up at the clouds.

Bofors guns went into action, firing tracer bullets to guide the armor on its way into German lines.

(This was a repetition of the manoeuvre devised in Normandy last August by Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, commander of the 2nd Canadian Corps, during the British-Canadian attack which broke through the German defence lines screening the highway to Falaise.)

With a mighty roar, this great mechanized force went churning across the field—tanks leading and infantry-carrying Kangaroos following close behind.

GROTESQUE SCENE

Flames belched from the exhausts of tanks to add to the grotesqueness of the scene. Flail tanks started out to clear the minefields, but their extra weight caused them to bog down quickly and the minefields had to be skirted.

Forward enemy positions were pierced before the infantry jumped down from their Kangaroos and went on foot to seize the vital ridge south of Calcar commanding the approaches to the Rhine and the Hochwald.

By dawn, primary objectives had been achieved and at 8:30 more tank squadrons were sent in.

Canucks' Power Surprised Nazis

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN GERMANY, Feb. 27.—(CP)—The armored strength of the 1st Canadian Army in yesterday's offensive aimed at the Hochwald line was a great surprise to German front line soldiers, according to prisoners.

A German lieutenant, captured with his company early in the battle south of Calcar, said: "We were told you had only small numbers of tanks in this area. If we had known you had so many we would not have fought at all. There were so many of them, so many."

It appeared also yesterday that the German army on the Rhine is having a tough time keeping even its crack units up to standard due to losses and fast-diminishing manpower resources.

The Canadians captured hundreds of 17-year-old and 18-year-old youths from the 6th paratroops division, one of Germany's elite formations.

New Trolley-Bus Barn Approved By City Council

Edmonton Chamber of Commerce that a joint industries committee be formed was deferred, and the matter referred back to the finance committee for further study and report.

Aldermen favored the creation of the committee, but asked for clarification of certain of the clauses, especially those dealing with the financing of the committee's operations. James Walker, president of the chamber, outlined the proposal to the council members. Other members of the Chamber of Commerce delegation were C. E. Garnett and Reg. T. Rose, executive secretary.

On the motion of Ald. James H. Ogilvie unanimous support was given to resolutions recently adopted by the Jasper Park Development Committee seeking developments in Jasper Park, designed to attract tourist traffic to the central Alberta mountain resort. Copies of city council's resolution will be sent to the chairman of the development committee for forwarding to the proper governmental authorities.

NOTICE OF MOTION

Ald. H. D. Ainlay gave notice of motion that as council has plans for an extensive work program for the post-war period, requiring large amounts of concrete products that the city should construct and operate a central concreting plant. The motion will be discussed at the next meeting of council.

Some discussion took place on the desirability of the site selected by the commissioners for the downtown trolley-bus barn. Many aldermen expressed fear that flood conditions might prove troublesome in the future.

City Commissioner R. J. Gibb said that a survey of the downtown section of the city had been made and it had been decided that the site chosen was the most suitable. It was close to the main trolley-bus routes, the property was city-owned, and there was sufficient space to provide outside storage for the trolley buses.

OTHER LOCATIONS

Other locations looked over, he said, did not provide sufficient space, or they were too close to the present barns to eliminate the dead-haul factor. One site, north of the technical school, was not considered because of the terrific congestion that would be caused on 101 street through the location of the barns on this through street. Another factor against the choice of this location, Mr. Gibb said, was that paving costing approximately $35,000 would have to be put down to give access to the barns and permit operation east of 101 street to 97 street.

Ald. Sidney Parsons asked if any consideration had been given to the fact that street railway operators had located their homes near the car barns, and that locating the trolley bus barns downtown might seriously affect them. Commissioner Gibb said this had been considered and transportation to and from the barns would be provided in the early morning hours.

Dealing with the flood hazard Commissioner Gibb said that there was little danger of flooding. The floor of the proposed building would be above the level of the 1915 flood.

Club Official Gets Sentence Of 18 Months

Eighteen months' imprisonment at Fort Saskatchewan jail was the penalty handed down by Magistrate L. R. Jackson in city police court Monday afternoon on Percy Belle of Edmonton, on each of four charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency. Sentences will run concurrently. On a fifth count, of indecentiy assaulting a female, he was sentenced to six months. Of a further two charges, one was withdrawn and one dismissed.

Belle, whose trial had been in progress for three days over the past three weeks, heard the sentence without any show of surprise, nor did he evince great interest, as the magistrate verbally flayed him.

"Inasmuch as you were placed in a position of trust and care of the children of McCauley community and have betrayed that trust, it aggravates the offense," Mr. Jackson said, scathingly. "I don't know how to express my contempt, but I hope it will scourge you day by day and night by night for the rest of your life, for what you have done to those children."

Crown Prosecutor C. G. Purvis, K.C., in summing up the case, said that Belle had been entrusted with the care of the children of the community. He had shown no remorse in this court and only felt that he was being abused.

Belle's counsel, J. A. Ross, in making a plea for his client, asked that the fact that Belle's conviction meant the loss of his pension be taken into consideration. "There is not much I can say in his favor," Mr. Ross added.

The first count against Belle, to which he pleaded not guilty on Feb. 13, ended abruptly Monday afternoon, after the question as to the complainant's mental stability was concerned, Mr. Ross contending that the former secretary of the McCauley Active Club had been 18 years of age at the time of the alleged "contributing" on the part of Belle.

Mr. Jackson added that the girl, without any "exhibition of shame" had entered the witness-stand and told of the experiences she had gone through. He had come to the conclusion, he added, that the girl had been almost auto-hypnotized.

"It is with great regret I have to say, not that you're not guilty, but that your guilt has not been proven," he told the accused.

The case came to a dramatic conclusion after a hectic morning session at which Belle shouted denials to the crown's questions concerning statements he allegedly made about his former secretary to a youth, and then telling of his prowess with a fire-arm.

NOT PROPER PERSON

He left the witness-stand shortly before noon, with the magistrate's words ringing in his ears: "You certainly are not the proper person to be placed in charge of young people." Belle's retort was lost as the magistrate called for the next witness.

The stern rebuke from the bench followed the reply the accused gave when he was asked if he would permit an 18-year-old daughter of his own to sleep in the club-house over night, and the accused emphatically said "Yes!"

Further asked if he would permit that same daughter to sleep in the tent of another man while at camp, Belle replied, "Under the circumstances, yes."

"The former "commanding officer" of the McCauley Active Club, a group of young boys and girls, told the court he spent some time in the shooting gallery in the basement of the city police station. He admitted hitting "bull's-eyes" at 20 feet, "when my eye is good."

(Earlier in the hearing, Belle told the court that, regarding pictures exhibited, he had taken some but not others. When he looked into the view-finder the three girls concerned had been wearing blankets about their shoulders. He claimed he "had been tricked into taking them.")

The accused was asked to tell the court what was said to an employee of an automobile supply establishment in the city, where the former girl club-secretary had been found a place.

"What did you tell him about her?" asked the prosecutor.

"I told him to leave her alone and not get fresh with her," was the reply.

"AS HIS DAUGHTER"

Belle, replying to further questioning of his own counsel, said he looked upon his secretary as his own daughter.

Asked why, as the authority in the club, he had not insisted that the girl go home at night instead of sleeping at the clubhouse, Belle replied that he would have lost his secretary.

It was at this point the magistrate asked the accused if he would have permitted his own daughter to sleep at the club. The accused replied:

"Yes, I would. I can trust my own daughter."

"Called to the witness-stand next was the man at present in charge of the rink in question. He was asked to repeat to the court what he had previously stated in camera.

"Belle took the pictures at the lake. I did not see them but he told me later."

"Did you see him after he was first arrested and then placed on bail?" asked the prosecutor.

"I saw him at the rink. He said not to say anything about the pictures at all," the witness answered.

Testimony of another 18-year-old girl, who said she was only 17 at the time of going to the camp at Gull Lake last summer, was to the effect that she had been asked to have her picture taken, in the nude, by the accused, and refused.

WORE A TOWEL

Three other girls, she said, went out wearing only a towel about their shoulders. This was allowed to slip off when the picture was taken.

"When Belle saw me, he ordered me into the tent if I was not going to be photographed", the witness stated.

She continued: "He was shooting at a target, one night, and he hit the "bull's-eye" each time. At night we would do different things—go to dances, or read, or have sing-songs. Belle was there and would tell stories, some were sex stories".

The witness stated that Belle had wanted to give her luminal tablets "to take the wittiness" out of her. She refused them. When he asked her to have her picture taken in the nude, she again refused she said.

Constable C. R. Duff, RCMP, who conducted investigations at Gull Lake, told the court briefly of the three girls who submitted to having their photographs taken in the nude. One of these, he said, was a 14-year-old girl. City investigations were conducted by Detective William McDonald.

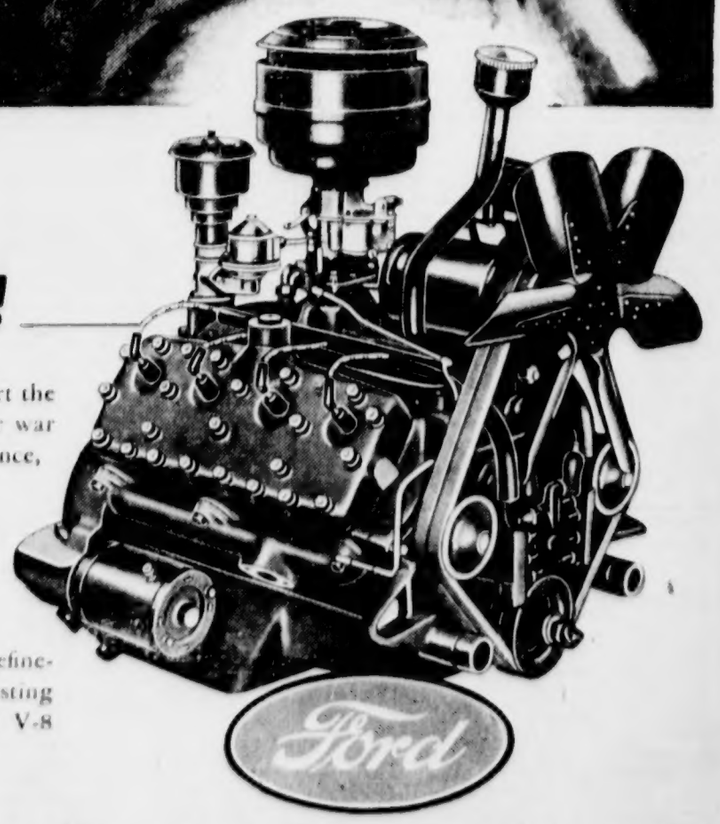

So after the War I'm buying a Ford!

The Ford V-8 Engine is built to take it!

ASK THE MECHANICS who service the trucks which supply our armies in the field. They'll tell you of the amazing endurance of the Ford V-8 engine under the most punishing conditions.

Ask the mechanics who are struggling to keep the trucks and cars operating here in Canada in the face of critical shortages. They'll tell you how the Ford V-8 engine continues to carry on year after year with the very minimum of service and repairs.

These men realize what a vital part the Ford V-8 engine is playing in our war effort because of its rugged endurance, and its positive fuel economy.

What of the Ford V-8 of the future? The engineers at Ford of Canada will bring to future Ford owners the full benefit of all the engineering refinements developed from battle-testing hundreds of thousands of Ford V-8 engines.

Assessment Figures Up

Edmonton's property assessment is moving up. It is $3,346,040 more this year than it was last year. The 1945 figure for taxation purposes is $73,138,300.

There have been times when increased assessment only meant that some more farm land had been surveyed into lots and the city boundary moved out to include it. And other times when a falling assessment meant that some of the subdivided goose pastures had been returned to farm land status.

The present advance has not been brought about by a general revision of assessed values of property, nor by shoving the city boundaries farther out. It is the result of vacant lots being built upon and thereby being increased in real value, and of city-held lots being returned to private ownership and thus made taxable.

The gain in assessed value thus reflects a gain in the actual value of city property. That, as Edmonton people have reason to know, is the only safe and sane basis on which to mark up the valuation of property for taxation purposes.

One Education

Dr. E. Floyd Willoughby, president of the Canadian Teachers' Federation, told an audience in Edmonton last week that a federal bureau of education should be set up in Canada in the interests of "national solidarity".

Similar views have been expressed by The Edmonton Bulletin over a period of years. Most assuredly there is grave need for some machinery to co-ordinate the educational systems of this country.

Canada has nine provinces and nine educational systems tied in with each other in the loosest possible way. With nine educational systems there are nine conceptions of citizenship and, presumably, nine different kinds of Canadians.

How can we hope for unity under those circumstances?

Dr. Willoughby envisions, not only a single educational system for Canada, but an internationalization of education in the interests of world peace. This is a broad view and an intelligent view. But the immediate needs of this country would be satisfied with a national educational policy which would wipe out some of the serious discrepancies among the nine existing systems.

Possibly a central federal bureau, as Dr. Willoughby suggests, would accomplish this purpose. Perhaps high uniform provincial standards should be required to qualify for federal grants.

But whatever the device set up to ensure this desired end, Canadians will do well to remember that they can have neither a workable democracy nor much national purpose if the children of Canada are taught in nine different ways.

Canada Steps Out

Opening of the new and powerful radio station at Sackville puts Canada in instant communication with all parts of the world. It is gratifying to know that the opening program was received in Europe to better advantage than any other transmissions from this continent. The apparatus, it is to be inferred, is of the best, and the location particularly suitable for messages to the eastern hemisphere at least.

The station will, quite naturally, be used chiefly to send out programs prepared for the entertainment of our soldiers overseas and our sailors and airmen wherever they may be. That will help them to keep touch with the homeland. It will also add something to their pride in their country to know that it is keeping abreast of the times in this as in other lines of progress.

In the days when peace is in the making and in the days to follow this voice from Canada will be nationally important. Canadian news, information and opinions can thus be flashed to radio listeners in all countries. The prompt presentation of Canadian reactions and ideas will have its part in shaping world conditions.

This Dominion has long been known as a "connecting link" between Great Britain and the United States. Its geographic position promises to make it in some measure a "link" also between these countries and Russia. Clear and constant radio communication with London, Moscow and Washington is an essential if Canada is to play such a role adequately or even intelligently.

Ddesn't Explain

Superfortresses and fighters on Sunday dumped twice as many tons of bombs on Tokyo as the luftwaffe ever dropped on London in one day. The 200 bombers flew from Saipan, the 1,000 fighters from Admiral Mitscher's task force, still cruising somewhere in Japanese waters.

These figures do not stand comparison with the 7,000 to 9,000 plane fleets which up to Monday had kept Germany under a non-stop attack for fourteen days and nights. As they fight the flames and tabulate the damage, Tokyo officials will not escape the uncomfortable reflection that the worst is yet to come. By contrast the air war over Japan is as yet only a sideshow.

Premier Koiso explains the inaction of the main Jap fleet by saying it will only fight where it can have the help of land-based planes. That seems to call for some more explaining. Can't Jap land-based planes fly as far as the carrier-based fighters which operate from Allied flat-tops only 300 miles or so off-shore?

The patent fact is that by air and by sea the war has been carried to Japan and is being kept there, though only a fraction of the Allied air and sea power can yet be allocated to that theatre. If Tokyo's experts saw any way to regain the initiative, even in the home area, they wouldn't wait until Germany is defeated before making the attempt.

It isn't too early to note that income tax returns have to be filed by April 30th. It may be easier to make out a return now than when time shall have dimmed the memory of events in 1944. Time flies, and most people depend more or less on memory for details which are necessary in making up a correct statement.

Looking Backward

From The Bulletin Files

1895: 50 Years Ago

There is a movement in Quebec to force the government to summon parliament and pass remedial legislation regarding Manitoba schools.

The project of a railway line through Northern British Columbia and the Saskatchewan valley is taking definite shape. An Act incorporating the Canada Western Central Railway was passed by the legislature of British Columbia, under which a company was empowered to build from a point on Vancouver Island to the boundary of the province in Yellowhead Pass. The idea, of course, was to connect there with a road built westward from Winnipeg through the Saskatchewan valley under a Dominion charter, either the Northwest Central or Manitoba Northwestern. R. P. Rithet, senior member of the British Columbia legislature for Victoria, seems to be chief promoter.

An order-in-council has been passed setting aside certain sections near Prince Albert for a new Mennonite settlement.

Guthrie, I.T.—The Cheyenne Indians are threatening to take the warpath.

Charlottetown.—The legislature met with only 10 of the 30 members present, because of snow-blocked roads. The sleigh of the Lieutenant-Governor upset in a drift while he was en route to the building.

A light shower of rain fell this morning.

W. M. Hopkins, DLS, came in yesterday from St. Paul des Metis.

J. H. Hargreaves, newly-appointed city public works commissioner, arrived yesterday from Winnipeg.

Messrs. W. T. Henry and W. J. Carter are measuring the floor spaces of the business houses in the city for assessment purposes.

London.—Britain and Germany will refuse the Scandinavian countries permission to send warships to convoy merchant vessels through the North Sea.

Paris.—The Allies' reply to the German blockade will be a declaration that all goods consigned to that country will be liable to seizure, whatever the nationality of the vessel in which they are consigned.

J. M. Dechene, Liberal member of the legislature for Beaver River, urged that the mineral rights be granted to Alberta settlers, in order to secure more rapid development.

Calgary.—British Columbia fruit growers have formed an association for carrying into effect the recommendations of the Duncan report, even before the report has been translated into legislation.

In Winnipeg today cash wheat was quoted at $1.95⅝ per bushel.

The city council declined to endorse the Sinking Fund Board in proposing to the City of Vancouver that Vancouver bonds held by Edmonton be exchanged for other bonds held by the coast city.

Toronto.—Iroquois Falls reports 73 degrees below zero, but officials decline to confirm the record. Edmonton weather, minimum, 6 above zero.

Under a bill now before the legislature, every resident of a municipal district will be required to pay school taxes.

The Symbolism of Wearing a Hat

True Character Speaks the Headpiece Worn by Man

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

The noted Spanish orator, Frederico Garcia Sanchiz, recently delivered in Madrid a lecture of two hours and fifteen minutes in defence of wearing hats. "We must not make stupid concessions to the advances of insidious communism," he said, "nor leave the field to low instincts of the equalizing mass, which revolts against signs and symbols of personal distinction."

As usual, the fascist mind has hit on a great truth and distorted it into a monstrous lie. The great truth here, of course, is the symbolism of the hat. The lie is that the hat represents and even creates a privileged class; for, on the contrary, it is the living emblem of equality and democracy.

Too equal, almost, too democratic. Having won, by years of struggle, the right to wear what hat he pleases and to wear it in the presence of the most powerful in the land, all men now wear the same hats. The humbliest is indistinguishable from the richest. This is democratic, decorous—and deadly dull.

Yet no free man would part from this hard-won privilege. The hat remains, as G. K. Chesterton was never tired of pointing out, the visible sign of human dignity, of the very things which fascism destroys. If the government were to order all men to wear the same hats, there would be a revolution, even though all men do wear just about the same hats voluntarily. If the government were to order that no hats must be worn in warm weather—which would be a sound measure of health—or that fur hats must be worn in the Edmonton winter—a still sounder measure—we should have civil war.

It remains true that even the deadly uniformity of modern hats cannot make men uniform. Some men can wear an ordinary felt hat and look like D'Artagnan while the rest of us look like dummies in a clothing store window. I have often tried to discover the magic of wearing a hat but without success. I can only suppose that a truly superior soul must tower above an inferior hat. Chesterton himself, who was an authority on the subject, could take a battered hat, already sat upon, crushed and covered with stains of whisky, beer, cocoa and other drinks and foodstuffs, and he could make this worthless piece of black felt look like a proud banner floating over the land of the free and the home of the brave.

Whereas most of us can buy a new and expensive hat and walk out on the streets to be recognized immediately, by the way we wear it, for the hopeless failures we are, Mr. Eden looks only stylish and well dressed in his black Homburg. Mr. Churchill takes a ridiculous, antique, square-shaped bowler, seen only in the cartoons of Punch, and makes it the flaming standard of England in its finest hour.

True character speaks through the hat, just as surely as the rest of us do, in another fashion, most of the time. The fascist says that this proves the existence of an elite and a master race. On the contrary, it proves just the opposite, for you never know where a great hat wearer may arise. He may come from the humblest circumstances and yet wear his hat like a king. Nor can you be sure that a great hat wearer is a great man. I have known rascals that could do wonders with a cheap hat and fine, honest men, who always looked as if their hats had been slept in by a hen. Beware these dashing fellows, who give a broad brim fascinating twist to catch the ladies' eyes. The reliable citizen is more likely to look absurd under a piece of felt. Very often the man who considers himself an aristocrat looks more absurd still. It is useless to represent the hat as a badge of caste and inherited superiority. Its opportunities are free to all.

It is the women, however, who take advantage of them. To the woman the hat is not millinery. It is metaphysics. It expresses somehow the most urgent yearnings of the soul; and when you see the souls bobbing along our streets, atop a new hair-do, you wonder what the spiritual world is coming to. But I am all for crazy hats if they are authentic—that is, if they truly express a crazy mood. Women have been crazy for a long time, thank God, but surely not as crazy as their hats. Many of these crazy hats, I fear, are worn under false pretences by women who just cannot reach that degree of lunacy, who claim a madness which they cannot achieve.

Again, many women wear gay hats when there is no gaiety in their hearts. But the deception is futile. The face shows through the hat. Others, perhaps, wear crazy hats to hide an inner heartbreak, of which there are more than plenty right now. Yet many, I suspect, have no heartbreak to hide, nor anything else particularly. But I would not confine the crazy hat by law to the crazy head or the broken heart. It is not necessary, since the hat really doesn't count. It is the lady who counts in any kind of hat. It is the way she wears it. And if the Spanish fascists ask any further proof of these theories, let them look to their tarnished hero, General Franco. For all his fancy hats, for all the work of hatter and tailor, he never looks anything but what he is.

ATS Going to Foreign Lands

Worry and Fear for Your Service Daughter Over-Seas Is Groundless

By MARY ALICE QUAYNE

From London comes this interesting piece of news, that the Auxiliary Territorial Services will be a breath of England in foreign lands.

My war correspondent friend writes me as follows:

"A week or two ago I was in Italy with the Eighth Army, driving up the familiar Route 9, en route for Forli and Faenza in the usual way, in the usual jeep, with the usual driver.

"Nothing was different from the morning before or the morning before that. There was the burned-out car—there the wrecked Tiger—there the big pothole—couldn't miss it this morning—landmarks as familiar as anything you meet in your own ride to work each morning.

"Then something happened. We were overtaking a truck and my driver said: 'Look, sir, a couple of ATS girls.' He was right—a couple of rosy-cheeked English girls, a sergeant and a corporal, sat peering out at the unfamiliar scene.

They were the first ATS girls my driver had seen in two years—the first English girls, with the exception of half a dozen ENSA girls and an occasional nurse, he had seen in months. These ATS girls were news.

Eighth Army's Aim

"Now that was several weeks ago. Up to the moment of leaving the Eighth Army I had not heard that those two ATS girls had been withdrawn from their job because the troops failed to treat them with proper respect. And I don't suppose I ever will.

"They were living and working among men to whom an English girl is the rarest and loveliest thing on earth. And to be respected accordingly.

"The memory of that morning came to my mind very vividly when, on my return to London from Italy a day or two ago, I read the report of Mr. Pethick-Lawrence, MP, speaking in the debate in the House of Commons on the ATS.

"'Girls of today are able to take care of themselves,' he said, 'but we cannot altogether shut our eyes to the greater laxity which prevails overseas.'

"Mr. Pethick-Lawrence, I'm afraid, does not pay our British troops a very high compliment. Nor, I'm afraid, does he know provincial Italy. Nor does he appreciate that, as any frontline padre would tell him the nearer you get to the front line, the higher are moral standards.

"The Eighth Army, as I know it—and I've been in every town, village, and hamlet we have occupied from the Foglia to the Senio in the past five months—is an army of men who, by and large, live for one thing only—to get the job finished and get home to their wives and sweethearts.

Canteen Heroines

"You can walk through Cattolica or Pesaro or San Arcangelo any morning or afternoon and see dozens of attractive girls. They will smile at you and exchange a friendly greeting. But you won't see more than a couple in the whole day walking with British soldiers.

"It's not that they don't like us—or that we don't like them. It just isn't done.

"The British soldier is in Italy for one thing—to kick the Germans out. He gets used to living in a country who regard him as a benelovent stranger and he lives quite happily with his chums in his own little isolated world.

"He has his shows—his cinemas, his Eighth Army news, and best of all, his letters from home.

"Like everyone else who lives with the same people for weeks on end, he gets browned off with the same faces, the same conversation. The chance to just talk to someone different is an event.

"The job of the half-dozen Englishwomen who work in mobile canteens on the Eighth Army front is not just doling out tea and cakes. It's just as important for them to talk to these men—to look at the photographs from home, discuss the kid's measles, darn a pair of socks, maybe.

"These women drive their trucks into the most awful places. I saw one handing out cups of tea and buns near Forli, with mortar shells falling 100 yards away.

"Those ATS girls I saw were not going to work as near the front as that—but I'm sure they wouldn't mind if they were. Back here in Southern England wives and daughters face perils even greater than we face in Italy, except in the very front lines.

"It isn't the ordinary perils of war Mr. Pethick-Lawrence is afraid of for our girls, however. But our men have taken their British standards with them. And I know that any British girl going out, as I hope more ATS will soon go out, to live and work with the Eighth Army will be treated everywhere with characteristic British chivalry and respect.

"The women MP's who played a great part in this debate were, in my opinion, absolutely right.

"The first girls are there. I hope that soon others will follow them. French girls serve with their brothers. Polish girls are with their brothers in Italy. The Yugoslavs—men and women—I saw in Naples were proudly wearing the same uniform.

"So, mothers and fathers, you need not worry. Your daughters are going out to complete a team. Your sons are out there now. They will welcome their sisters and treat them well."

In The Home of Goldfish King

By Gordon Sinclair
in Maclean's Magazine

If you've seen a goldfish anywhere in the British Empire during the past six years, the chances are three out of five the fish were bred and sold by George Aston, Stouffville, Ont.

If you saw your goldfish anywhere in Canada during any of the past 10 years, the chances are 999 in each 1,000 that Aston bred, fed, sold, and shipped that goldfish.

George Aston, Canada's goldfish king, produces more goldfish than all other breeders in the British Empire combined, and his personal post-war plan is to double capacity from its present 13 million fish a year. He says selling the fish will be a pushover.

Aston's 53 terraced ponds cover 10 acres and average a million fish a month for export and a million each year for the home trade. Many ponds are 100 yards in length, 100 feet wide and eight feet deep.

He can sell and deliver a million fish at an hour's notice, and once sold 12 million in a single order. Each of his 18 girl helpers can easily count 20,000 fish an hour, by hand.

By way of proving his versatility, the goldfish king turned bird broker as well and once sold 10,000 canaries in a single day—every bird in Toronto.

In turtles, he sold 100,000 in an hour, and next morning took orders for an equal amount.

In pre-war days when parakeets, or love birds, could be imported, Aston's routine sales ran to 1,000 a week, but sometimes he sold 5,000 in a day. His price was 60 cents a pair.

He has also sold frogs, newts and tropical fish by the tens of thousands.

Now, during the long Canadian winter, Aston's millions of goldfish hibernate, without food or motion, deep in the icy water. Tens of thousands to each pool they face inward, nose to centre, like the spokes of a wheel, neither hearing nor feeling the snowstorms and blizzards.

About the first week of April, when pond ice has crumbled and honeycombed, the long winter sleep will end and the enfeebled and emaciated fish will swim toward surface, seeking food.

Few will have died during the five-month slumber, but all will be weary and listless. Then, as the warming sun penetrates the pools, the mating urge will assert itself, and each goldfish will get a sparkle in its eye.

In its wild state—oh, yes, there are wild goldfish—a female goldfish would seek out water vegetation and lay her eggs among muddy weeds, but George Aston provides his breeders with hygienic nests made of horsehair and wire in a frame 24 by 18 inches and four inches deep.

About the middle of May the females, now well-fed and frisky, will start laying eggs, and when each has deposited about 25,000, a male will take charge.

Four to seven days later, depending on the water temperature, the fish will hatch into black pin-pricks of life which can neither swim nor eat. So tiny are these baby goldfish that you can put 1,000 into an ordinary tumbler of water and never see them. Two thousand in a glass might look like an indistinct smudge.

Some years ago Aston was doing a neat turnover in little swamp lizards called yellow-bellied newts, in live frogs for bait, and in baby turtles. These baby tortoises were gathered by colored children from the swamps and bayous of Louisiana, and Aston bought them in lots of 1,000, or occasionally 10,000.

Expecting a demand for such turtles in Britain, he wired Louisiana an order for a direct shipment of 10,000. Buyers in the swampland got that message with an extra zero at the end and sent the hunters galloping into the swamp and swale, hell bent for fortune.

So they gathered up 100,000 and shipped them by seagoing express.

Confronted with such an oversized shipment Aston figured on a publicity campaign to help him sell. He put 500 turtles in a box, had a cabby drive him to the heart of London and before the cabby had time to argue Aston stepped into the Strand and dropped his box of 500 turtles. They started walking with all the majestic dignity of a Chelonian—that's their family name—in all directions and a delighted crowd gathered.

Traffic was snarled, horns blared, cops arrived and the turtles continued to crawl, amid gleeful shrieks.

Aston made sure that for every turtle he recaptured a pair got away. Soon boys began to pocket a few, the bewildered bobby was thinking of sending for the riot squad, and reporters from nearby newspapers pounced on this human interest copy. When he had given what seemed a sufficiently exotic story the goldfish king retrieved his publicity turtles and vanished.

At the sixpenny shops next day buyers were waiting for him with enormous orders. The turtle yarn had hit every front page in London. Aston sold most of his 100,000 turtles at a profit of three cents each, then doubled the profit on another 100,000 and came home to Canada with a gleam in his eye.

One claim the piscatorial professors advance is that the liesurely observation of little fish in a bowl is soothing to shattered nerves and that's why you'll find so many in hospitals, medical consulting rooms, and dentists' chambers.

It's a shame, therefore, to tell you that the Aston home in Toronto's suburb of Forest Hill hasn't a single goldfish from cellar to garret, and if Mrs. Aston has her way it never will have.

Senator Joins Murray of MVA

By B. T. RICHARDSON

WASHINGTON.—Senator James Murray, Democrat, Montana, has become one of the national figures of American politics. As one of Washington's ablest parliamentarians, he has sponsored important legislation for the administration. He introduced the Full Employment Act 1945, in January, which would set up a national production and employment budget by which the level of employment would be measured, and the deficiency by which that level falls below the 60,000,000-job full employment target be filled by direct federal invesiment. The other day, he introduced Senate Bill 555, to establish the Missouri Valley Authority.

This is nothing less than a project to control the physiography of one-sixth of the surface of the United States, to make over its economy, make productive its dry lands, and develop its power. The scope of the proposed MVA is hard to visualize. It will affect six or seven states. In Senator Murray's own state of Montana, it may mean doubling the present population of 550,000. A comparable project would be the development of irrigation, land reclamation, electric power, navigation, agriculture and commerce of the Saskatchewan river system in the Canadian West, under a single authority.

MVA is no new thing. It's inspiration is the successful TVA—the Tennessee Valley Authority. There is talk also of a CVA—a Columbia Valley Authority. Indeed, one of the critical battles of American politics now shaping up is waged on who shall control such enterprises. Officials of the Interior Department under Secretary Harold Ickes have plans for both MVA and CVA under Ickes.

But Senator Murray wants his MVA directly under the President and Congress. If the Murray bill passes, a corporation will be created, with two years in which to prepare plans and come back to Congress for funds. How much that will be, no one knows. But it will be at least a billion dollars, perhaps double that.

Senator Murray has been in the senate for ten years. His hair is greying. He talks quickly, in a flowing manner. Canada? Did I know Patsy Parker who used to run the Hudson's Bay store in Winnipeg, and before that in Calgary? The senator recalled meeting R. B. Bennett in Calgary years ago. In those days he was a lawyer, working for his uncle "Old Jim" Murray. The senator was known as "Young Jim". He was born at St. Thomas, Ont., but his uncle induced him to go west, study law and enter the business. Young Jim inherited the Murray millions, made from Montana copper, and he is one of the wealthiest men in Washington.

Against this background Senator Murray is one of the rising liberals of U.S. affairs. He stands in the "left of centre" position which President Roosevelt claimed for himself not long ago. With his MVA and full employment bills, he will ride in the storm centre of a historic congressional battle. MVA means cheap public power, and the power interests are fighting hard. The fight inside the government to seize control of that amount of spending power is also critical. His first hurdle was to get his bill sent to the Agricultural Committee, rather than the Commerce Committee headed by Senator Bailey, a southern Tory. Murray is in the Henry Wallace wing of the Democratic party.

But the MVA is something more than a bold attempt to lay a great river under the control of man. The Missouri flows through the dust bowl of the dry thirties. It will mean watered crops where the drouth reigned; farm homes with electricity in them; new communities; and an unprecedented industrialization of an area which has hitherto been an agrarian colony of the factory civilization east of the Mississippi. More than any of these MVA is a new symbol of American progress.

In the history of the American republic, progress has been measured in steps that led from opening of the vast forests of the eastern states, then the turning of prairie sod on a billion acres, then the building of railroads across the continent, and the creation of new, throbbing communities beyond the mountains. These things served as the dynamo of American progress. Now gigantic river projects take their place. In them, this generation begins to find new goals of American life, and new enterprises that will transform the face of a continent.

"Can you milk that cow?" the farmer asked the new land-girl.

"I'll try," she answered.

"Right. Go ahead and let's see what you can do."

Twenty minutes later the farmer returned. "Well, how did you get on?" he asked.

"Not so bad," replied the girl; "but wouldn't it have been better if I'd had a bucket?"

A young girl was taken to her first football match. All the way through the game the onlookers raised their voices, criticizing or complimenting the two teams. When the girl returned home her father asked her which side had won. "Well," she answered brightly, "from what I could hear the 'Rotten Foulers' defeated the 'Dirty So-and-so's,' two to one."

Sanctuary

CHICAGO SUN

—Unfortunately for Hitler, religious sanctuary was abolished everywhere in Europe by the end of the 18th century. Only a modified political form of it still exists.

In England, the members of Parliament cannot be served with writs or arrested within the precincts of the Houses of Parliament, which extend to the railings of Palace Yard.

During the Irish persecutions of 50 years ago, Parnell and other Irish members of Parliament avoided arrest for some time by living in the House of Commons and never venturing beyond the gates.

Under the present circumstances, Hitler's best bet is to get elected to the British Parliament.

Exonerating Germans

Eric Mann in the New York Herald Tribune

There is an interesting phenomenon to be observed in the writings and utterances of all those who have made it their business to exonerate Germany and blame Hitler and the generals for all that Germany did to the world. Whenever they talk about Germany they say "the Nazis," but in the same breath it is "the British" who have done this or that; it it "the Russians" who are not our allies but just happen to have the same enemy at this moment and are not to be trusted; it is "the Americans" who are so silly as to believe one could guard Germany into becoming a decent nation. Only when one talks about "the Germans have exterminated millions of innocent people"—well, then these defenders of Germany become very indignant. "The Germans" have done nothing. "The Nazis" have.

When the Germans were called "the people of thinkers and poets" no German objected. No German said: No, we are not, because there are some Prussian generals and there are people who always follow them into wars. The term "thinkers and poets" was accepted and used for very effective propaganda—a propaganda which has again been started with new vigor, becoming more outspoken and bold the nearer Germany's defeat.

Nothing can so well demonstrate the emptiness of the idea "Hitler and a few generals are responsible" as the fact that those who propagate this thought do not speak of "Churchill and a few imperialists" or "Stalin and a few Comintern," but of "the British and "the Russians".

It is about time that we stop the nonsense of distinguishing between "Nazis" and "Germans" (as if the Nazis were not Germans) and hold Germany responsible for what she did to the world.

Map above shows areas in Pacific war theatre where more than 600,000 Jap troops have been by-passed by island-hopping Americans and left to "wither on the vine". In some places, the Japs are well-equipped, in others they are badly off physically and get no supplies. Most of the enemy forces in the Philippines are in the big southern island of Mindanao. Their leaders concentrated them there to meet an expected American invasion, but General MacArthur crossed them up by landing on Lingayan Gulf, Luzon.

CP Plans Big Extensions to Travel Service

VANCOUVER, Feb. 27.—The need for strong transportation system within the dominion and also to foreign countries to maintain Canada's wealthy export trade was shown Monday by W. M. Neal, vice-president, Canadian Pacific Railway, Montreal.

Revealing that the Canadian Pacific Railway is planning to spend many millions of dollars to restore and improve land and ocean services, Mr. Neal said that no extensions are contemplated at present but that the company "is prepared to consider anything in the post-war period."

Included in already well advanced plans is the replacement of three war victims, Empress of Canada, Empress of Asia and Princess Marguerite. Piers at Vancouver, lost by fire before the war, will be rebuilt for the coast service while Piers at BC go back to ocean traffic.

FASTER SHIPS

Mr. Neal revealed that the two new Pacific ocean ships would be somewhat similar to the 20,000 ton Duchesses so familiar on the Atlantic run, but would be slightly larger, a little faster and possessed of improved accommodation and other modernisms.

One major post-war project which the company already has well in hand concerns the re-assimilation of the more than 20,000 Canadian Pacific men and women in the fighting services or on special war duties. "We expect that about 17,000 of them will want to return to us when the war is over," said Mr. Neal. "A number have already been welcomed back into service and we have provided jobs for other men returned from overseas. After the First World War we took care of all of our own who wanted to return and many others in addition. We expect to do fully as well now."

CGE Plans to Train Returned Men in Appliance Servicing

TORONTO, Feb. 27 — In co-operation with the Department of Veterans Affairs, Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., is completing plans for the training of a limited number of men as electric appliance service mechanics, upon their discharge from the armed forces.

A program of instructional courses has been devised by the Engineering Service Department of Canadian General Electric that will provide students with six months intensive training with pay. Training will include four months shop practice, one month in the field and one month in the office. If conditions warrant it, students will be given the opportunity of enjoying an additional three months of training in appliance installation and the servicing of commercial refrigeration, air-conditioning and oil-burning equipment.

SHORT COURSE

A further short course is under consideration which will equip students for administrative positions in electric appliance dealers' organizations. While no guarantee of post-graduate employment will be made, every endeavour will be made to place qualified men with dealers or to absorb them into the company's own service staff.

Applicants for training must be between 20 and 30 years of age, though exceptions to this ruling might be made under special circumstances. They will be expected to conform to certain primary qualifications, foremost of which is a knowledge of radio fundamentals. Preliminary examinations will be undertaken to determine each applicant's suitability for the type of work involved.

Training will be given at the seven district service divisions of Canadian General Electric. Applicants will be required to enroll at the company's district office nearest their permanent home address. At the completion of the course, students will sit for short written examinations. Appliance dealers throughout the dominion will be kept informed of these GE-trained service men and will be invited to consider them for employment when opportunities occur.

Post-war prospects in the field of electric appliance servicing are considered exceptionally good. The trend towards home electrification will, it is expected, be resumed with renewed impetus after the war. New electric units—television, electric dishwashers, garbage disposals—will be added to such popular home appliances as radio, refrigerators, ranges, washers, irons, kettles, toasters and clocks. Projected schemes for rural electrification will, it is anticipated vastly increase the number of electric appliance users, all of whom will require the help of skilled appliance service technicians.

Wartime shortages of manpower have brought service personnel in many electrical repair shops below par both in numbers and in quality. With the re-organizing and re-staffing of such shops during the post-war period, factory-trained technicians, schooled in the latest methods of appliance maintenance, are bound to be sought for eagerly.

NEED MORE ATTENTION

With the development, too, of new electronic home equipment, many appliances will tend to increase in complexity of design and precision of workmanship. They will require, more and more, the attention of skilled and trained men when service needs arise. There will be less scope for the user to make his own repairs or to entrust them to a handy man. Electric appliance service will become increasingly a job for the expert. In the electrified tomorrow, the demand for qualified appliance men should provide interesting and profitable rehabilitation opportunities for many thousands of Canada's returned soldiers, sailors, and airmen.

Further details regarding the plan will be released at a later date. Applicants should contact the Regional Personnel Counsellor of the Department of Veterans Affairs.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean
SPORTS EDITOR

SASKATOON Navy juniors are out, but not before they had shown convincing evidence they were very much of a threat in the western Memorial Cup playdowns. But the $64 question as to how they compare with Moose Jaw Canucks will not be settled after all. Drat it!

A Moose Jaw-Unicorn clash looked like a hockey tid-bit from the Edmonton angle, and having seen Navy perform, plenty of fans could be found here willing to say—and with a few kopeks too—that the Saskatoon sailors were no worse than an even bet against Canucks, or any other western junior aggregation for that matter.

Navy did lack reserves, but they were a good club. But nobody should have any criticism to offer regarding the action of the SAHA officials in calling a halt, excepting perhaps that it comes a trifle late. No team should be permitted to enter any playdowns where there is any doubt as to their being able to go right through to the final, in the event of winning.

While freely admitting, at the time of their recent visit to Edmonton, that their playdown position then was more or less a puzzle, the Navy boys frankly stated they just intended to go ahead until they were stopped.

YOUR GUESS NEXT

PORT Arthur Flyers are out today too, but not for the same reason as Navy. Their defeat last night at the hands of their fellow townsmen, the West Ends, is a great upset—another fatality to be added to the long list in Canadian playoff history.

Prophets and prophecies usually take quite a licking about this time of year. Clare Anderson, of Winnipeg, in a BUP resume written early yesterday, stated the four teams conceded a chance of making the trip to Toronto in search of the Memorial trophy were Winnipeg Monarchs, Port Arthur Flyers, Moose Jaw Canucks and Edmonton Canadians.

He mentioned that "Squib" Walker, talent scout for Toronto Maple Leafs was one of those doubting that Edmonton's Canadians "rate outside their own province." (Walker did not see Canadians play when he visited Edmonton a few days ago, for the simple reason they were in Vancouver, but he may have watched them perform earlier in the season.)

So Anderson narrowed the field down to "three extremely evenly matched hockey teams — Monarchs, Flyers and Canucks." But he added that Walker refused to say which of Port Arthur and Winnipeg was the better team, though quoting Squib as saying, "The team which wins the Lakehead-Manitoba final would make the jaunt east . . . that the western clubs are good but they won't be able to touch St. Mike's."

On the other hand, Art Chapman, former NHL star, watched Moose Jaw Canucks batter Commandos in Regina a few days ago and was quoted, "The Moose Jaw club could whip the power-laden St. Mike's and, as a matter of fact, could do it quite easily."

It's your guess next!

Independent Hockey Loop Leaders Both Win to Wind Up in Dead Heat

St. Rly., New Method End Season in Tie

Semi-Finals To Be Played Next Monday

By DON KILLIPS

STREET RAILWAY and New Method wound up the Independent Hockey League schedule in a first place tie Monday night when the Railwaymen swamped Burns 12-2 and the Laundry team whipped Swifts 7-3 in the doubleheader at the Arena.

Semi-finals, which will be sudden death games, are set for next Monday night at the Arena. Street Railway will meet the third-place Swifts club and New Method will take on Burns. Then the two winners will clash in a best-of-three final for the league title and the Gas Co. trophy.

Bobby Crossland won the league scoring crown when he collected six points, two goals and four assists for Street Railway. Marsh Darling with three goals and three assists, George McPherson with three markers and Bobby Graham with four assists and one counter helped Crossland pace the Railway squad to the one sided victory. Alex McSporran, John Maday and Bob Walker collected the other three tallies.

Darling gave the winners a 2-0 lead in the first period when he drove home a pair of goals, one unassisted while Jimmy Graham was serving time in the cooler.

Street Railway increased its margin to 5-1 in the second canto, adding three while the losers netted one, and then went on a scoring rampage in the last, scoring six after Jimmy Graham fired Burns' second goal.

Crossland tallied at 3:20, less than a minute after Jimmy Graham's counter, and then at 7:23 Darling opened up a fast-scoring spree that collected four goals in two minutes and eight seconds. After that the Railwaymen just coasted along, adding another two more.

ELOCK SCORES FOUR AGAINST SWIFTS CLUB

Pete Elock again paced the New Method club to victory, scoring four goals as his team trimmed Swifts 7-3 in the opener of the doubleheader. Tommy Brant with two and Louie Holmes fired the other three, and Holmes also picked up two assists.

Colin Kilburn, Ben Hoffsteter and Doug Verville drove home the Swift counters, one coming in each period.

A fight broke out in the last period between Holmes and Hare and before Referee Bill Runge could halt the fist throwings, others had joined in. Bill quieted things down quickly, though, and waved Holmes and Hare to the box for five minutes.

Holmes started the New Method club on the road to victory at 4.58 of the opening session and Elock came through with three in a row to make it 4-0 before Kilburn completed a play with Hare and Gregor to cut the lead to 4-1 at the end of the first. Brant fired two for the winners, while Verville netted for Swifts in the second and then Elock added one on a pass from Holmes for New Method and Hoffsteter took an assist from Kilburn to make Swifts' count total three in the third.

Saskatoon Navy Out

Prince Albert Black Hawks To Represent North Sask.

REGINA, Feb. 27.—(CP)—The Saskatchewan Amateur Hockey Association Monday night announced that Prince Albert Black Hawks would represent the Northern Junior Hockey League in the Saskatchewan finals.

Saskatoon Navy at present leads Prince Albert 2-0 in the Northern League finals but service rules prevent Navy from participating in inter-provincial playoffs.

If Moose Jaw Canucks end their series this week with Regina Commandos, who they lead three games to none in the best of seven round, Canucks will be home to Prince in the first two games of the finals, March 3 and 5.

The best-of-five round will continue in Prince Albert on March 7 and 9, or 8 and 10, and the fifth game, if necessary, will be played in Moose Jaw.

The Saskatchewan winners are due to play at Edmonton in the Memorial Cup playoffs on March 15.

Maurice Richard "Has Everything" Says Joe Malone

MONTREAL, Feb. 28—(CP)—Take it from Joe Malone, whose scoring record he smashed Sunday night, Maurice Richard of Montreal Canadiens "Has everything, and in any era would have been a fine player."

Malone, who was among the first to congratulate The Rocket Sunday night when he went one goal past the 44 piled up by Malone in 1918, said in a by-lined article in the Montreal Star yesterday that Richard "is one of those players that comes along every once in a while, and I hope he goes on to even greater feats."

"Of course he has fine line mates, but I think he would help even two mediocre assistants. There isn't any doubt of his class . . ."

"Ever since he became a talked-about player I have followed his career with interest," wrote Malone, "Last year I saw him play several times. I noticed he used a rising shot to considerable advantage.

"This year I notice he is mixing them up with a great change of pace coming in on the defence. He comes in swinging and he reminds me of Jack Darragh of the old Ottawa Senators, probably one of the greatest but most overlooked wings of all time . . ."

No B.C. Junior Final This Year Say Coast Moguls

NANAIMO, B.C., Feb. 26.—(CP)—Officials of the Pacific Coast Junior Hockey League decided at a meeting here yesterday that there will be no British Columbia junior hockey finals on the coast this season unless the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association arranges for the staging of such a series.

Negotiations aimed at bringing a Trail, B.C., junior sextet to the coast for a post-season series, were terminated by the PCJHL when it was found Trail did not possess a strong enough contender to match the coast calibre.

Vancouver Arrows of the PCJHL were given permission to import a former Medicine Hat, Alta., juvenile now at Victoria, to replace Ken Reeves, who was injured recently and is out of action for the balance of the season. The player, Chuck McCullough, hasn't donned skates or uniform for a club this season.

New Features This Year

Five-Pin Bowling Tourney Opens on Saturday March 10

THE 17th annual tournament of the Edmonton Five-Pin Bowling Association which will take place at Recreation alleys from March 10 to 17 is expected to attract the biggest entry in the history of the event.

The city championships, in which there will be no handicaps, will get under way on Saturday, March 10. Players will bowl four games and highest total of actual pins rolled will count. Contrary to previous years, there will be separate championships for both ladies and men.

Other special events are "mixed teams" with a scratch figure 1,050. Mixed doubles scratch is 450 and for "ladies booster" team the figure is 700. The latter is a new feature for the tournament and is intended more especially for those bowlers in the lower average brackets.

The tournament this year is divided into two classes—"A" and "B", as contrasted to former tourneys when all bowlers were required to enter one event regardless of their averages.

Scratch figures for "A" events are, singles 250, doubles 475 and teams 1150, as compared to "B" class, singles 190, doubles 370 and teams 900.

Bowlers are asked to get their entries in early and forms may be procured at Recreation alleys. A representative of the association will be at the Rec each evening commencing tonight. Closing time for entries, other than city event, is Monday, March 12, at 7 p.m.

Jim Rutherford is president of the Edmonton Five-Pin Bowling Association. Len West is vice-president, Grace Forbes secretary and George Poole treasurer. Vic Batho is tournament manager.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 27.—(AP)—St. Louis Flyers announced last night that John Kukkula, 25-year-old, defenceman from Fort William, Ont., has lost the sight in his right eye as a result of an injury in Pittsburgh two weeks ago.

Kukkula was struck in the eye by the blade of a hockey stick during a game.

Flyers Lost Out In Junior Upset

PORT ARTHUR, Feb. 27—(CP)

Port Arthur West End Bruins sprung a startling upset Monday night by nosing out Port Arthur Flyers 3-2 to win the Thunder Bay junior hockey championship and the right to meet Manitoba in the Memorial Cup play-offs.

Jackie Marshall scored all the goals for Bruins' second win in the best-of-three series. They took the second encounter 8-4 after dropping the first 6-2.

Johnny Raynak and Rudy Migay put Flyers two goals ahead before Marshall moved his sights on goal.

Snead Captures Fifth Golf Title

PENSACOLA, Fla., Feb. 27—(AP)—Sammy Snead of Hot Springs, V.A., won his fifth golf championship of the winter season Sunday by capturing the Pensacola open tournament with a 72-hole total of 267, seven strokes better than runner-up Byron Nelson of Toledo, Ohio.

Snead shot his best four rounds of the winter series to win $1,333.33 war bond (maturity value) prize money. He was four under par 68 on both rounds Sunday after getting a five-under 67 on the first 18 Friday and 8-under 64 on the second.

EXPECT TOURIST TRADE

PORT OF SPAIN.—(CP)—Trinidad is looking forward to an important tourist trade after the war. The Chamber of Commerce has asked the government to investigate the possibilities without delay and the tourist board suggests advertising campaigns supplemented by West Indian information bureaux in Canada and the United States.

Minor Leagues Want Voice In Selection of Baseball Head

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—(AP)—A 10-member minor league committee Monday recommended that "for the best interests of baseball," the National Association of Minor Leagues should play a part in the selection of a new commissioner to succeed the late K. M. Landis.

The committee, which opened a three-day session to revise the existing major-minor league agreement, also went on record as favoring "certain legislation for the protection of the minor leagues that would enable the National Association to either reaffirm or cancel the agreement governing the relationship between the minor leagues."

Action of the committee was announced by Chairman Tom Richardson, president of the Eastern league, who earlier had declared there would be no public airing of the committee's recommendations. He did not amplify his statement referring to legislation aimed at "protecting" the minor leagues.

WILLING TO HELP PAY

The resolution urging a minor league role in selection of Landis' successor also proposed that the National Association should "pay a part of the expense of the commissioner's office."

Although proposals are reported to call for broadened self-government, strengthening of territorial rights, increases in player draft prices and a minor league voice in selection of a baseball commissioner, Richardson kept silent on those topics.

"The rough agreement draft on which we are working is confidential", he said, "and any recommendations we make must be concurred in by a major league group before it is submitted to the December National Association meeting".

Clarence (Pants) Rowland, president of the Pacific Coast League and a member of the committee, said he would urge an increase in player draft price above the $7,500 maximum and greater protective measures against major league inroads into minor league territory.

CURB ON EXPANSION

Several leagues were interested in having the new major-minor agreement include guarantees against major league expansion because of the probability post-war air travel will make it possible for teams from coast to coast to compete on a league basis.

Under the present setup, any major league team can purchase a minor league franchise by giving the league $5,000 and making suitable arrangements with the club owner without regard for the league's stability. That would give the majors an opportunity to place teams in such cities as Los Angeles and San Francisco of the coast league, Milwaukee of the American Association, New Orleans of the Southern Association, or Baltimore of the International League.

Find New Use For Adverse Comment

TORONTO, Feb. 27.—(CP)—The Toronto Hockey club yesterday sought to drum up customer interest for tonight's National Hockey League game between the Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks by quoting in a newspaper advertisement unfavorable comment by Toronto sport writers on the game the two teams played in Toronto Feb. 10.

In explanation of the use of the criticisms in the advertisement, Frank Selke said: "We always pride ourselves on being honest up here and if our team is as bad as the papers say it is our players should know it and the public should know it so no one will be coming to see the game under false pretences."

Game Postponed

Second game of the best of three basketball series for the right to represent northern Alberta in the playdowns which was to be played Monday night at NWAC gym, was postponed and will be played Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock. Opener of the playoff, between Air Base Clippers and Alaskan Division Headquarters, was won by the Clippers.

Colored Wrestler To Meet Higgins Here on Monday

Saelie Samara, 230-pound colored wrestler from Boston has been matched with "Butch" Higgins of Philadelphia in a double main-event program listed for the Empire theatre for next Monday night, March 5.

Ted Christy of Hollywood and Lee Grable of Los Angeles have been given the green light for another bout and Maurice De Blieck and Steve Jossul have been named as a pair for one of the two preliminaries.

Samara, big colored sensation, has appeared in several main events in the Olympia in Los Angeles and in San Francisco recently and he holds wins over Kayo Koverly, Kashey and Tiny Robuck. A couple of weeks ago he held Jim Londos in an hour match. The Samara-Higgins affair will be the final bout of the show.

The Christy versus Grable rematch certainly holds possibilities, with even aspects of being a grudge battle. After each had obtained a fall in their recent bout at the Empire, this pair evidently found ordinary "rassling" much too tame for their own immediate ends, and eventually went to work with their dukes in a free-for-all punching session outside the ring.

SARNIA, Ont., Feb. 27—(CP)—Flt. Lt. Charles Henry (Hank) Living, RCAF, well-known Canadian football star, is missing on air operations overseas, his wife has been informed. A former resident of Holly, Mich., Living played football for the Sarnia Imperials and Toronto Argonauts.

Pittsburgh Ace Now Holds Lead

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 27—(AP)—Bob Halton, Pittsburgh ace, tallied five goals and seven assists during the past week to jump from third into top place in the American Hockey League's scorching individual scoring race. The spree brought his total to 82 points, one more than his team-mate, Bob Gracie.

Gracie, who remained in the runner-up post, picked up 10 points.

Walton displaced Paul Courteau, Providence star, who has been inactive since Feb. 14.

Dunn's Ousted 31-19

University Reaches Final In City Cage Loop Playoffs

University Golden Bears moved into the final series of the City Men's Basketball League playoffs Monday night when they handed Dunn's Tailors a 31-19 setback to take the best of three semi-final in two straight games. They won the first contest 31-19.

The final, between Victoria High School and Varsity, will likely commence Wednesday night at the University's Athabaska Hall.

The Varsity cagers played a consistent game last night and every player except one collected at least a single point. Del Steed topped the list with seven while Al Manifold with six. Don Steed and Phil Proctor with five each, Alex Andrekson with three, Reid Payne and Allen with two each and Norie Nishio with one were the other pointgetters.

Harold Russell set the pace for the Dunn's squad with 10 while Walter Pashik with six, Fred Inoye with two and Guy Cubitt with one were the other snipers.

Varsity, still hot from the intercollegiate playoffs at Saskatoon last Saturday, rolled up a 16-4 lead in the first quarter and then held on to win out fairly easy.

The Tailors came back in the second while some of the Varsity regulars were taking a rest, and outscored the winners 6-2, cutting the margin to 18-10.

The Bears, however, didn't worry much and out-counted the losers in the other two frames. They added five while Dunn's were picking up four in the third to hold a 23-14 edge at the three-quarter mark and then finished up by collecting eight in the final session while the Tailors could only gather in five points.

Following is the box score:

Today's Sport Parade

By Jack Cuddy

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(BUP)—Andy Anderson is a little guy; but he has a big message for the sports world. Anderson, sports editor of the Houston (Texas) Press, is in New York on tour. He is spreading the gospel: Organize disabled veterans sports committee—now. Organize them in every city and town in America, to help disabled boys back into civilian life."

Anderson — a small, middle-aged man with faded, sandy hair —says these home-town committees should be organized on a five year basis to help the boys adjust themselves during the trying years that follow their release from hospitals.

"No national organization is needed for this," he stressed Monday at the hotel Belmont-Plaza. "It's strictly a job for home-town committees. But every community in the country should have such a committee.

"These committees—composed of newspaper men, sportsmen and fans—should contact every disabled veteran when he returns to his home, and find out what is his favorite sport. In most cities this can be done through the assistance of the veteran bureau. In smaller communities, everyone knows when a wounded boy comes home—and where he lives.

SHOULD GET PASSES

"Arrangements then should be made for him to obtain passes—without taxes—for all events in his favorite sport for five years or longer. This would include passes to bowling alleys and billiard parlors and golf courses.

"Boys who need equipment for golf, fishing, skating, skiing, etc., should be provided with such equipment. Those who might be interested in making trout flies, fishing rods, skis or snow shoes should be provided with the material.

"It will be a godsend to these boys if they can be kept interested in sports as spectators or participants, or both. This is particularly true of those whose minds have suffered from shock, exposure or battle fatigue. Radios could be provided for those who can not leave their homes. At least they would have the chance to listen in on sports events.

DOUBLE PURPOSE

"These committees should be organized now; otherwise the need for them may be forgotten in the hustle and bustle following victory. It is too easy for the disabled to become forgotten men."

Anderson's tour has a double-barrelled purpose. In addition to campaigning for sports committees, he is visiting hospitals where he entertains service men with movies and stories of fishing, and with exhibitions of batie casting with a wee little rod and reel. Anderson, perhaps the best known fisherman in the southwest, is such an accurate caster that he can knock the ashes of a cigarette at 20 paces. He can flip a plug clear across a hospital ward and pop an unsuspecting nurse squarely on the bustle, much to the delight of his spectators.

His committee idea is being adopted in Houston, and in the few cities he already has visited—Columbus, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh. He has been in New York but one day, and already chairman Paul Gallico of the New York sports hospital committee is interested.

Incidentally, the little man's son, Sgt. Ralph Anderson, is with Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's army in Germany.

Montreal Navy Finds Grey Cup Hard to Unload

TORONTO, Feb. 27.—(CP)—The Royal Canadian Navy football team from Montreal has found that it is easier to win the Grey Cup, emblematic of the Canadian football championship, than to give it up.

The Canadian Rugby Union, at its annual meeting Saturday, turned thumbs down on a suggestion of Cmdr. J. McFetrick of HMCS Donnacona at Montreal that the navy team give up the trophy on the grounds it had participated in the final against Hamilton Wildcats contrary to service regulations.

The CRU instructed its secretary to reply to Cmdr. McFetrick's letter, saying the Navy team should keep the trophy and offering congratulations on the victory.

Steps to encourage junior and juvenile football were taken. A committee composed of R. W. Hewitson and Harold Bailey of Toronto and David McCann of Ottawa was appointed to handle this activity and it will have the assistance of sub-committees in each union, the members to be the union secretaries.

Officers elected were: honorary president, Dr. A. Davies, Ottawa; president, Col. Stuart Forbes, Montreal; 1st vice-president, N. J. Taylor, Regina; 2nd vice-president, T. Alison, Toronto; 3rd vice-president, Frank Lennard, Dundas, Ont.; executive, Professor R. P. Frey, Saskatoon, Sask., and Professor T. Louden, Toronto; secretary treasurer, R. W. Hewitson, Toronto; auditor, Percy Robinson, Hamilton.

The rules committee deferred until April consideration of playing-rule changes recommended by Ontario and Quebec member unions.

SCOTS BACK TO SCOTCH

STONEHAVEN, Scot. — (CP) — Ten men produced 5,000 gallons of whisky at a Stonehaven distillery one week recently, the first production in Scotland since early in the war. It may be sold to the public 1947.

CANADIAN SPORTSHOTS

TORONTO, Feb. 27.—(CP)—Canadian professional golfdom is soon to lose one of its most colorful figures when Vancouver's rotund little Scotsman, Davie Black, retires. Forty years a professional divoter in Canada—25 of them at the beautiful Shaughnessy Club on the west coast—Davie soon plans to take a last look at the emerald grass of the first fairway and at the snowcapped mountains he can see from the door of the pro shop.

Born in Troon, on the west coast of Scotland—a golfers' town of 25,000 inhabitants and five courses—Davie took an apprenticeship at one of the clubs there. In 1905 he came to Canada and started as pro at Montreal's suburban Outremont club. Five years later he went to Rivermeade in Ottawa and after 10 years there moved to Shaughnessy.

Winner of countless tournaments, his most notable feat was capturing the Canadian professional three successive years starting in 1919. For that he was presented with a duplicate of the PGA cup and is the only man in Canada to win that distinction. He also won the PGA tourney in 1913.

He won the Pacific northwest open in 1920, '22, and '24. In the 1920 PGA meet he set the golfing world a-buzz when he broke the Royal Ottawa golf club's record with a 68 in the first round and to top it off went out in the afternoon and did the course in 67.

Ten years ago he set a new course record at Shaughnessy with a 64, but it was broken the following year by one stroke. Davie doesn't mind that, however, for it was his own son, Ken, who snapped it and went on to win the Jubilee tournament at the expense of the foremost golfers on the continent.

PLUGGING FOR THE LADIES

Northern Ontario's most energetic booster of ladies softball, Barney Welch of Kirkland Lake, has been lobbying to revive the game in places where it has died out. Britt (North Bay Nugget) Jessup reports that Barney is seeking to have re-opened the northern branch of the provincial women's softball association.

MONTREAL, Feb. 27. —(CP)—Elmer Lach, Canadiens, gathered two points as the Flying Frenchmen defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 5-2 Sunday and moved into the lead in the National Hockey League scoring race. Lach was one point ahead of team-mate Maurice Richard whose single goal in the same game established an all-time total goal record of 45.

Canadian Boxers Head South In Search of "Pot of Gold"

By LARRY J. ROGERS
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

TORONTO, Feb. 24.—(BUP)—Horace Greeley once said, "Go west, young man, go west."

Canadian athletes long ago paraphrased Greeley's advice slightly—making it read: "Go south, young man, go south."

Young Canadians who were outstanding in every line of sport from hockey to the jockey's trade have been crossing the border into the United States in search of the pot of gold for quite a few years now.

But it's doubtful if there ever were as many Canadian boxers in the United States at any one time as there are now. And it's doubtful if so many fighters ever made as much money out of as little ability as many of these Canadian invaders are doing today.

Not that all of the leathertossers from this country are incompetent, by any means—but it's a recognized fact that the vast majority of Canadian fighters now taking the headlines south of the border are little better than good club fighters, if that, in normal times.

FEW NAMES STAND OUT

Looking over the lengthy list, a few names stand out—lads like Johnny Greco of Montreal, Phil Palmer of Vancouver, Florian Bibeault of Quebec City and a recent newcomer, Cliff Beckett of Sudbury, Ont.

All of these lads would have been standouts in normal times—although they might have had to wait quite a while longer for the breaks than they're doing now.

Dave Castilloux, for example, fought with success for five years before he got a shot at a Madison Square Gardens purse—and he had to wait till he was well past his best before he got a try at Lightweight Champion Sammy Angott. Harry Hurst, another good Montrealer, never did get a real opportunity to test his punching power against the big names—perhaps because he came within an ace of beating Sammy Angott in a Toronto bout on one occasion.

But things are different now—and the Canadians who can even give a possible imitation of a prize fighter are in great demand from Maine to California.

The Sudbury lad we mentioned earlier—who has had a very short professional career but gained plenty of experience as an amateur—may soon get a match with no less a foe than Ray "Sugar" Robinson.

Beckett told friends in Sudbury that his managers were in the process of lining him up a bout with the great negro fighter for some time in March—although details were still incomplete.

Beckett, who is a promising lad with a fairly solid wallop, will be little but a chopping block for the high class negro welterweight. And the match may well set him back in his fight career a good deal—taken at this early stage.

However, Beckett is probably lucky to get his chance at the big money early in his ring days—and if he's got the stuff of champions in him, it ought to show against the crafty Robinson.

Purse Withheld

DETROIT, Feb. 27.—(CP)—Boxing Commissioner John J. Hetiche said he would withhold the purse of Kid Francis, claimant of the lightweight championship of Panama who was floored five times in three rounds by Leon Spencer of Cleveland in the main bout at Arcadia last night. Spencer weighed 131 pounds, a pound more than Francis.

Selection Board Will Meet Later

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 27—(AP)—A meeting of major league baseball's four-man advisory committee to select a new baseball commissioner will not be held today, as scheduled, President Sam Breadon of the St. Louis Cardinals said Monday. No new date has been set.

Breadon gave no reason for the postponement. Other committee members are President Philip K. Wrigley of Chicago Cubs, President Alva Bradley of Cleveland Indians and President Don Barnes of St. Louis Browns.

District News In Brief

KILLED IN ACTION.—The parents of FO. John Wolfe, RCAF, have received word that their son was killed in action over Wilhelmshaven on Oct. 15. Previously he was reported missing. The son of Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Wolfe of Elk Point, FO. Wolfe attended high school, graduating with honors in June, 1942. He was an active member of the Boy Scouts. On enlisting in the RCAF, he trained at Edmonton, Saskatoon, Chatham, N.S., and then went overseas to serve with the Goose squadron as Halifax navigator. Surviving, besides his parents, are three sisters, all at home.

Mate's Bravery Is Unforgettable Part of Pte. Asel's Army Career

MIRROR: The bravery of one of his comrades rates as one of many unforgettable incidents connected with the army career of Pte. Kenneth J. Asel, who has returned from overseas to spend his leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Asel.

Veteran of the Sicily and Italy campaigns, Pte. Asel described his buddie, E. A. Albinet of Caddilac, Sask., driving up besides a burning truck-load of ammunition. With no regard for his personal safety, Albinet leaped into the truck, heaved the burning rounds of ammunition from the surrounding explosives and saved both the truck and its valuable cargo.

"You never forget things like that," Pte. Asel said.

The soldier joined the Canadian Army in August, 1941, trained at Vancouver, Vernon, B.C., and Red Deer, went overseas in January, 1943. Born in Mirror, he intends to return to the farming industry.

PTE. K. J. ASEL

BOMBED THE RUHR.—PO. H. McMullen, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. McMullen of Ryley, who is spending his leave with his parents after completing a tour of operations with the RCAF overseas. Wireless operator on a Halifax bomber, PO. McMullen bombed the German Ruhr Valley and completed a number of mine-laying trips around the Kiel canal. He was overseas 18 months.

Shirley Hanna Is Trochu Ice Queen

TROCHU: The annual ice carnival staged by the Elks lodge here to raise funds for cigarettes for service men overseas drew the largest crowd in its history. Miss Shirley Hanna was crowned carnival queen by J. P. Ferguson, past grand exalted ruler. Others on the queen's platform were the 1944 queen, Miss Betty Morris, Mrs. J. P. McGowan, honorable royal lady, and the exalted ruler, G. Molner.

Jean Mott took first prize with her fancy dress costume. Doreen Schmierer was second and Stella Cormack third. Jim Parsons and Dave Kimmel of Drumheller gave an exhibition of fancy skating with bag pipe accompaniment by Angus McPherson. A colorful drill by a number of girls trained by Miss Mabel Halbert preceeded the crowning of the queen.

In hockey games that accompanied the carnival, Drumheller defeated Trochu 6-2 and Three Hills women battled the local girls to a no-score finish. A doll was won by George Yard, Jr., and a war savings certificate by Maurice Frere.

Border City Trade President Reviews Roads In District

LLOYDMINSTER: With the assumption that any good town that hopes to become better must have easy access to market territory, the Lloydminster board of trade in the past year has made good progress in improving district roads, according to the report of the board president, O. C. Yates, received at the annual meeting.

The president stated that during the last month, several inquiries had been received from parties interested in establishing business concerns in the town. Mr. Yates anticipated that after the war, when labor and material were obtainable, an increase in business and number of residences would be strongly felt.

RCAF Downed On Border City Ice

LLOYDMINSTER: In a game that saw the score tied several times during 60 mihutes of play, the Lloydminster Hockey Club emerged victorious on the long end of an 8-5 count when it met North Battleford's 13 SFTS team.

Strong Air Force Urged For U.S. Following War

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27. — (AP) — Gen. H. H. Arnold warned yesterday that the United States must maintain a powerful post-war air force because the next world aggressor will strike first at this country.

In his annual report, the chief of the Army Air Forces declared the American planes must operate from large, strategically-located bases.

Other highlights of the report:

1. Most of the American airmen in Europe may go directly to the Pacific war when V-3 Day arrives. Gen. Arnold said where possible they will be given leave to visit their homes, but the urgency of war may make the number of such leaves small.

2. The United States is working on three new types of giant bombers—the B-35, B-36 and B-42—"which we expect to be more powerful and capable than those now in operation." The biggest bomber now in use by the AAF is the B-29 Superfortress.

3. The army has a new jet-propelled plane. Information on the latest type is withheld for security reasons.

4. A training bullet has been developed for hitting planes without damaging them. The 30-calibre plastic missile breaks on contact without penetrating metal as thin as one-eighth inch dural plate.

Soldiers Meet

One Thought Other Dead, Two Brothers Reunited

CALGARY, Feb. 27—(CP)—Two brothers, one of whom believed the other had been killed in action overseas, were unexpectedly reunited at the Red Cross reception centre Sunday morning when repatriated prisoners-of-war reached Calgary.

They were Pte. L. J. Versailles, 29, of the 48th Highlanders, and Pte. D. H. Versailles, 30, sons of Mr. and Mrs. L. Versailles, of Grande Prairie, pioneer residents of northern Alberta.

The younger brother, twice wounded in Italy, reached Calgary Saturday afternoon on a special hospital train. It was then he learned that his brother, reported missing last September, and whom he thought had been killed, was due to reach the city about twenty-four hours later, with a group of repatriated prisoners-of-war.

"Had it not been for this information I would have been on my way home Saturday not knowing he was following me across the country," said Pte. L. J. Versailles.

"I last saw him in England late in 1941 and we spent our leave together in Glasgow. It seems almost too good to be true that we are together again in Calgary."

"Special Decree"

NEW YORK, Feb. 27—(CP)—Mrs. Kate Kruse had given all her dolls "sad and desperate faces" from the time her son was killed in the war, so her well-known Berlin doll factory has been closed by "special decree" of Reich Minister Goebbels", the Stockholm newspaper Tidningen said yesterday, as quoted by the office of war information.

Co-Operatives Said Schools Of Democracy

QUEBEC, Feb. 27—(CP)—The Superior Council of Co-operation of the province of Quebec maintained yesterday in a brief submitted to the Royal Commission investigating the taxation of co-operatives that co-operation represented, among other things, a first-hand training in democratic principles, a school for national unity, a factor for peace and for social security.

The brief was read to the five-man commission by Rev. Georges Henri Levesque of the faculty of social sciences at Laval University here. He described council's purpose as "moral and educational" and said it was designed to work for the unification, protection and sound development of the co-operative movement in the province.

MINIATURE DEMOCRACY

"Each co-operative is a miniature democracy," Father Levesque said. "Each co-operator learning to do his duty better in his co-operative organization is when better trained to accomplish this in his political life."

He added:

"Many Quebec co-operatives have members who are French and English-speaking, Catholic and Protestant. These two elements are also represented on the superior council of co-operation. Its fundamental principles being the opposite to that of fighting and competition which result in war, it forms in men a sense of fraternity and solidarity.

"Furthermore, the state during the war has seen itself forced to exercise multiple controls. If it wants to release these after the war we foresee an absolute laissez-faire which would be as dangerous as an over-controlled economy. Co-operation seems to us to be the middle path. The part of control released by the state would be assumed and assured by these intermediary organizations which are essentially democratic."

Gala Reception

BELGRADE, Feb. 27—(Reuters)—Yugoslav Partisan leaders who spent three years living in caves and hiding in forests, attended a magnificent reception at the White Palace, former residence of Prince Paul of Yugoslavia, in honor of the visit to Belgrade of Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander, Allied commander in the Mediterranean.

Aircraft Plant Finishes Last Plane Repair

On Saturday afternoon at the huge Aircraft Repair Ltd., plant in the northwest section of the city, plane No. 1,597 rolled off the assembly line and another proud chapter in the great war record of Edmonton and Canada came to a close.

Plane No. 1,597 marked the last complete overhaul performed at the Aircraft Repair plant under the great British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, a plan that is daily bearing more fruit as Allied airmen smash Hitler's staggering cities to greater heaps of rubble.

OPERATED FOUR YEARS

Placed in operation more than four years ago under the direction of President W. Leigh Brintnell, Aircraft Repair at one time employed close to 3,000 men and women.

At the peak the plant ran the full 24 hours. Planes used in training Commonwealth airmen in all parts of the west were at one time overhauled and rebuilt at the big plant in the Calder district.

In all there were 2,712 engine overhauls.

Since the curtailment of the Commonwealth Air Training plan there has been a gradual slowing down of activity at the plant.

LAST PLANE

Now the last plane has been delivered and the last engine turned out. Unless a sudden change in the fortunes of war should rule otherwise.

At the time of closing Aircraft Repair Ltd. was under the management of J. Hunter.

Still Heavy Demand For Men in Industry

There is still a great demand for "heavy labor" in the nation's war and primary industries, while the "light labor" supply situation is good, L. E. Westgate, Ottawa, associate director of labor supply for war industry and mining, National Selective Service, stated on his arrival here Tuesday.

During his one-day visit to Edmonton he will confer with National Selective Service officials, and executives of the Alberta Mobilization Board.

He said there had been a limited, selective movement of labor from the prairie regions to the heavy industries in eastern Canada. He declined to comment on the extent of the manpower shortage in the heavy and war industries.

Disarmament Of Japanese Is Advocated

Japan must be effectively disarmed, and every precaution must be taken to prevent re-arming for future wars; must surrender military equipment, and disband the three military forces and their staffs. These were amongst the unanimous decisions of delegates to the International Pacific Relations Hot Springs conference, according to Dr. C. Cecil Lingard, Regina, who was one of Canada's delegates to the conference.

Librarian of the City of Regina library Dr. Lingard is an authority on the political and economic life of the Far East, and is in Edmonton to address a meeting of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, Edmonton branch, to be held at the Macdonald hotel Tuesday at 8 p.m.

He said there was complete accord amongst the delegates on the question of stripping Japan of the territory acquired by aggression. She must be confined to her home islands, and all territories, including the mandated islands given her under the 1919 peace treaty must be taken away.

ECONOMIC DISARMAMENT

In addition to the military disarmament it was agreed there would be economic disarmament also, and that imports to Japan should be rigorously supervised to prevent the influx of chemicals and minerals that could be used for rearmament purposes, he said.

Japan will be required to dismantle munition plants and heavy industry, and it was believed these would be shipped to China as part of the reparations imposed on Japan. It was agreed at the conference that reparations should be paid in kind and not cash.

With the repression of the military rule of Japan, and with the Japanese showing willingness to cooperate in world peace plans there should be no repressive economic measures carried out against the nation, but it was decided she should have the last priority on raw materials among asiatic nations, Dr. Lingard stated.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION

The question was asked of Canadians, recently, what should be done with Hitler & Co.—should they be executed or banished to some island? About 75 per cent voted in favor of execution. Further asked what should be done with the Quizlings and such, whether execution would suffice, or whether the punishment should be left to the people of the occupied countries, over 60 per cent voted in favor of the latter. Well, we're asking you whether you agree with any of these plans.

THE ANSWERS

ALF. HOLLAND, clerk: Why not let Hitler and all his gang settle their own problems on some quickly-to-be forgotten island?—without food, of course. That's the way they treated the people of occupied countries, wasn't it?

* * *

MRS. L. FOSTER, housewife: I favor action by the Allies—and quick action at that. I see nothing to be gained by allowing war criminals the benefit of long, drawn-out trials. The life penalty should be exacted, of course, and the sooner justice is done the better it will be for everyone.

* * *

A. A. HARRIS, salesman: To allow people of occupied countries to deal with the leaders of Nazism would be to encourage even more bloodshed than there has been already. One thing is certain, however. People of the world must know that whatever is decided on—and I mean by Allied leaders—that the penalty will be carried out. Personally, I favor banishment to some island, where the gang can watch each other die slow but certain deaths.

Noted Air Ace Expects Return Overseas Soon

What's left of Hermann Goering's once-feared Luftwaffe had better watch out because one of the Empire's leading aces, Edmonton's sharpshooting Flying Officer Johnny Caine, DFC, will be returning to the aerial arena over Europe one of these days.

The black-eyed, pleasant-voiced former member of the famed City of Edmonton Mosquito intruder squadron expects to return again to Europe either for instructional duties or for "scalping" operations over Naziland.

BIG BAG

Young Caine, who shot nine enemy planes out of the air, destroyed eight on the ground and damaged five others, was top scorer for the famed squadron when he returned to Canada on furlough last June.

Of late he has been instructing at an Eastern Canada centre.

Son of Harry L. Caine, South Edmonton fur farmer, FO. Caine was an unsuccessful candidate for the Alberta legislative assembly in the general election last August.

Before joining the service he was prominent in city athletic circles.

Load of Bombs Is Jettisoned At Clover Bar

T. A. Marler, well-known Clover Bar district farmer, will probably always hold the unique distinction of being the only Alberta farmer to have 12 500-pound bombs dumped on his farm during the Second World War.

None of the bombs went off, which is a good thing indeed for the Marlers and others living in the vicinity. If they had exploded the racket alone might have had more or less serious results.

The bombs were part of a three-ton load jettisoned by a B-17 US AAF four-motored bomber when the bg aircraft developed mechanical trouble three miles northwest of Clover Bar Saturday afternoon.

EASE LOAD

The plane, on a routine mission had to be lightened to maintain altitude after the trouble developed.

The bombs were first "safed" so they would not explode, before being dropped close to the Saskatchewan river bank.

Young Ken Marler who saw the bombs drop from low altitude, said that one bomb buried itself seven feet in the ground. Other hit small trees.

Air force crews removed the bombs the same afternoon.

The aircraft made a safe landing at Namao airport.

Vets Must Aid Rehabilitation

Only the veteran can re-establish himself in civilian life, no government or organization can do it for him, Lt.-Col. J. A. Macdonald, of the Veterans' Land Act Administration, Calgary, told members of the Appraisal Institute of Canada Tuesday morning. He was addressing a session of the eighth annual meeting in the Macdonald hotel.

Lt.-Col. Macdonald served overseas in this war as second in command of the Calgary Tanks.

He said the rehabilitation of servicemen is the concern of all citizens but that the man must have a general soundness of character or no one can do anything for him.

More than 175,000 men and women have been discharged, he reported, but these are not indicative of the general cases which will appear when the forces are demobilized as many have been discharged because they are misfits or because of ill health.

The group which will be most difficult to do anything for, the speaker said, are those who have mental quirks. "These men will require a great deal of sympathy and understanding," he said.

Prof. A. Stewart, of the University of Alberta, also addressed the Tuesday morning session, speaking on "Yield Variations As a Risk Factor."

E. Corbett and G. R. Bradford were chairmen.

Air Base Beacon Is "Going Strong"

Second anniversary number of the Air Base Beacon, peppery little weekly newspaper published by the Edmonton unit of the Alaskan Division, USAAF, has just issued its second anniversary number.

The edition, well illustrated with photographic scenes of this city, contains many articles praising Edmonton as a modern, hospital "American-like" city.

Sgt. W. O. Willis, is editor of the Air Base Beacon, with First Sgt. W. H. Wilson, managing editor and PFC M. Belkind, associate editor.

PRIVATE BREGER ABROAD—"I hope you realize what deserting from the Army means!"

Returned Men Say:

English "Dates" are Willing To Pay "Half Shot" of Outing

Taking out a Canadian girl may require some getting used to for a lot of young Canadian service men returning to Canada, because most English "dates" will "pay half the shot" when you take them out.

That was the interesting challenge served on young Canadian womanhood Tuesday morning by a couple of smiling, bronzed Canadian Army battle-wounded who arrived at the Edmonton CPR station early Tuesday.

Pte. J. J. O'Donnel, 9604 103A avenue, who has been serving in Western Europe with the Essex Scottish Regiment and Pte. J. Mearon, High Prairie, with a group of about 20 servicemen, arriving Tuesday, waxed enthusiastic about the 50-50 basis of English dates.

More seriously though both praised the English people as being the "most warmhearted folks in the whole world".

O'Donnel said that the Russian Armies are greatly admired by the Canadian troops in Western Europe.

OVER IN FOUR MONTHS

"With the way the Russians are going now we think the war in Europe will be over in four months", he said.

He was wounded at Falaise in September.

Because of delayed trains east of Calgary, many returning servicemen due to reach here Monday night did not arrive until Tuesday morning at 6:30 o'clock.

A few did get in Monday night, however, including Sgt. Jack Parfett of Bruce, paratrooper with the First Canadian-American Special Service Force who won the American Silver Star for gallantry at Cassino.

All returning men were warm with praise of the welcome home in all parts of Canada. At Winnipeg a band met the train and many of the men were moved to tears, they stated.

A majority of the men returning voiced strong objection to "soldiering in Canada," some saying they would volunteer for service in Burma or other far east theatres of action before settling down to barrack life in Canada.

OTHERS RETURN

Cpl. Marshall Watt, former stereotyper at The Edmonton Bulletin, who has served overseas for nearly five years, most of that time with The Loyal Edmonton Regiment, and Sgt. W. Carruthers, 12612 68 street, former city ballplayer, were with those reaching Edmonton early Tuesday.

Pte. Mearon, of High Prairie, an original with The Loyal Edmonton Regiment, was wounded at Ortona where he lost a brother, Freddy Mearon.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Slack Wife a Cheater; Husband Must Realize

Bad Housekeeper and Cook Will Never Make the Grade Even If She Has Every Other Enviable Marital Virtue

A man asks: "What shall I do with a wife who is a good woman, but the world's worst housekeeper?" He then goes on to relate his tale of woe. "My wife," he says, "has all of the virtues except domestic ones, but I have gotten to the point where I would rather be married to a virago, or a nagger, or a henpecker, who was a good cook and manager, than a lady angel who is allergic to the cooking stove and the broom.

"We have a nice house, but it is no home, unless you have a taste for living in a pigsty. There is no order or comfort in it. Every room is cluttered up as if a rummage sale had just been held in it. The floors are unswept. The sink is full of dirty dishes. Meals are never on time and, when they are, they would give an ostrich stomach ulcers. The children are always ailing and the doctor tells their mother that it is because they are not properly fed, but the knowledge that her own offspring are starving just as much as any little Greek refugee doesn't send her into the kitchen.

"All this is particularly hard on me because I was brought up in a home where everything was spick and span, restful and comfortable, and by a mother who was like the model wife in the Bible who saw well to the ways of her household. She made home the most attractive spot in the world to her family. Her home cooking was something for an epicure to roll on his tongue, and she didn't throw half of father's earnings into the garbage can, as my wife does.

"That's my story. But what is a man to do who sees himself being bankrupted, his children killed, and himself turned into a grouchy dyspeptic by a wife who has no other fault except that she lays down on her job as a homemaker?"

ANSWER: Your grievance, brother, is common, but there is no way to deal with it adequately because while the law gives a wife the right to divorce her husband for non-support, it does not permit him to divorce her for non-homemaking. Yet surely it is just as obligatory on the wife to fry the bacon as it is for the husband to bring it home.

Why women, who are otherwise honest and have decent principles, do not think it is as much their duty to be good housekeepers as it is their husbands' to be good providers, no one knows. But they don't. If they don't happen to have the domestic complex they make it an alibi for never learning how to cook, or run a budget, or sweep under a bed.

And apparently it never occurs to them they are playing a low-down game on their husbands who have to support them, but who get no return for their money. One of the reasons every man marries for is to get a home, and if his wife fails to make him one he is being gypped just as much as if he had been cheated in any other bargain.

But the remedy is in men's own hands. They make the laws, and if they would pass an act that made soggy bread and dishwater coffee legal evidence for divorce, it would make women realize they would have to be good housekeepers if they wanted to keep their husbands. And they would get busy at it.

For, after all, the wife's job is a pretty good one and few women want to fired from it.

Minute Make-Ups

Women with the round face commit more errors in their coiffures than the women of any other. The top soft at the sides, with angles to give balance and break up that "square contour". A side part, and height on one side is very flattering. If the neck is short, never allow the hair to touch the collarline.

Points for Parents

By EDYTH THOMAS WALLACE

Daughter: "Bettie's father has come home. Why can't Daddy come?"

Mother: "The first job of the army is to win the war and they will be as fair as they can in sending men home."

Son: "I don't think it's fair to let other men come home and keep Dad in the army."

Mother: "I don't either—but that's the way it goes. Men who have some pull, get out."

Children need the feeling of security which confidence in their government as well as in their home gives them.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

I am 20, healthy, strong, do not smoke or drink, would like to be a nurse but have only two years of high school. It there a chance for me to study nursing anywhere?

S. L.

I have always wanted to be a nurse, but I lack the educational requirements for enrollment in nurse training school. What about home-study courses by mail, to fit me for employment as a physician's office assistant or as a nurse's aid in some institution?

(Mrs. H. W. M.)

Answer—If and / or when the hoity-toity people in charge of the racket decide to admit to nurse training school young women with one or two years of high school, and to complete their training as nurses in a two-year coure, it might be a calling worth a girl's while. As things stand now I'd advise girls to avoid nursing. I suggest that Mrs. H. W. M. apply now to physicians in her community for the job she would like. Incidentally — though this does not interest the hoity-toity folk — not ten per cent of pupils or graduates of nurse training schools can write letters that reflect better education than the letters of S. L. and Mrs. H. W. M. do. Mere diplomas and grades or marks given by temperamental or whimsical teachers carry far too much weight, and common sense too little, with the hoity-toity nurse training school authorities. If you ask me, girls, I advise you not to listen to that phony appeal for recruits to the nurse training racket. Good nurses are needed in the services, all right, but that is the unanswerable reason why the absurdly high requirements for admission to nurse training should be relaxed or rather placed on a reasonable level. I expect this will make the hoity-toity ladies as mad as Marseille fishwives, but who cares? I hope it gives parents of susceptible daughters something to think about when their daughters become intrigued by the appeals of these people for recruits.

Most people believe that the majority of books published are fiction, but publishers' statistics tell a different story. The Bible leads all books sold in the world. In America, fiction represents about 20 per cent of the books published, while the other 80 per cent is heavier literature, such as religion, sociology, biography, poetry and drama.

McKenney On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

I received today's interesting hand from Thomas H. Givan of Rixford, Pa., and it is a rather unusual grand coup situation.

The opening lead was won by North with the king, the ace cashed and the small diamond returned, which was won in dummy with the queen. The king of spades was played and North jumped right in with the ace and returned the ten of diamonds. Mr. Givan trumped the trick with the five of spades but South over trumped with the ten spot, forcing him to ruff in dummy with the queen. Now, you can see that it looks as if Mr. Givan will have to lose another spade trick to North's nine spot.

At this point, a heart was led to the king, a small heart was played to dummy's ace and the seven of hearts ruffed with the six of spades. The queen of clubs was overtaken in dummy with the ace and the ten of hearts was trumped with the seven of spades. This left East with the jack and eight of spades and North with the nine and deuce.

Mr. Givan won the next trick in dummy with the ace of clubs and now led a club, which North had to trump. Mr. Givan overtrumped and won the last trick with the jack of spades, making his contract.

School Facilities Are Said Lacking In Northern Sask.

REGINA, Feb. 27—(CP)—Agriculture Minister L. F. McIntosh said last night in the Saskatchewan legislature that "scores" of boys and girls of school age in northern parts of the province have no school facilities. He spoke in support of the CCF government policy of larger school units. The minister said he met a man in the north whose three sons had gone to enlist and were rejected because they had no education. The same man had two marrfed daughters who had never been in school.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

The mother's eternal bewilderment is the manner in which she shall teach her child desirable ways of acting. How is she to teach her child to be loving and kind and generous? How is she to teach him to be obedient?

There is this ceaseless hunt for a successful method of teaching, so that learning may be painless, illuminating, and successful.

We know a good many things about learning. We know that we learn by experience; we learn by doing; we learn by example. We learn least of all by being told that we must do or be anything. Yet mothers wear themselves out daily in exhorting, lecturing, reproving.

Even adults, with all their experience, learn little from words. A mother, eager to learn, eager to listen, goes to an informative lecture.

How much of the speaker's thought and how many of his words does she carry away with her? Usually those which apply to her own particular problems of that immediate moment. She forgets almost all of what she might apply in the future.

The child cannot be prepared for acts to come, or lines of desirable conduct, or thoughts to think, or emotions to feel by being told about them. He listens, perhaps respectfully, but he does not learn.

He learns when the occasion arises, and he acts. His acts, good, bad or indifferent, impress upon him the desirability of repeating or refraining from them in the future. He learns by results.

If we want a generous, kind and loving child, we do not exhort him to be all of these things. The words have no meaning for him. Least of all do we tell him he's "got" to be kind, loving, and generous and if he isn't he'll get a good spanking.

We may profitably point out that certain acts are kind, certain acts generous, certain emotions loving. He may imitate the acts he sees exemplified in our conduct and enjoy the experience and the satisfying result of them. In such ways he learns.

Our leaflet, "Obedience and Punishment," will be sent to anyone who sends a request for it accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope, to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

College Head Opens Exhibit

Dr. F. S. McCall, principal of Alberta College, in opening the Eyedair exhibition of Indian paintings on display in the Empire room of the Hudson's Bay company store on Tuesday, told the audience that there has been a renaissance of the spirit of the American Indian within the past few years.

This spirit is not only shown in the excellent art work being produced but in mission and industrial schools through radio programs, handicraft work, and the recent visit of Chief Oskenaton of the Six Nations Indians in southern Ontario.

Dr. McCall congratulated the Council of Canadian Unity which is sponsoring the exhibition and explained that the organization is doing a splendid job of welding the various nationalities of Canada into fuller and richer Canadians. For the Indian, he said, the council is bringing before the public something of the life and needs of these native peoples.

CLOSES SATURDAY

The exhibition, which was opened at 3:15 p.m. Tuesday by Dr. McCall will close on Saturday. Forty paintings by George Clutesi, 40-year-old member of the Socket tribe, and Gerald Tailfeathers, 21-year-old member of the Blackfoot tribe are shown. Mr. Clutesi is from Port Alberni, B.C., and Mr. Tailfeathers comes from Cardston.

The paintings by Mr. Clutesi comprise water color, crayon oils and pastel work. They are typical Pacific Coast pictures depicting wild scenes of sea life and grotesque sea animals. Also displayed are figures of totems and masked men. Among the latter is a figure in black with a weird mask over his head. It is entitled "Hin-Keets-The-Sea-Serpent Dance."

Another painting entitled "Tu-Ghee," depicts a storm at sea.

Mr. Tailfeathers' paintings are more on the milder and somewhat modern line. Unlike his fellow artist he does not try to relate Indian mythology.

Among his best paintings are a profile study of a white woman with an upswept hair-do, a profile of a man, austere Indian faces and stampede studies showing the cowboy at his best.

Proceeds from a silver collection will be turned over to the painters to help them to further their work. The pictures will be shown until Saturday at 5.30 p.m.

Tea will be served each afternoon. Besides Dr. McCall, Kelly Porter, R. W. Hedley and Philip H. Godsell will give addresses on various afternoons.

Mrs. Reta Rowan will preside daily.

Ltd., where the bride-elect has been employed as a nurse, held a progressive dinner party. A silver dish was presented to the guest-of-honor.

Mrs. W. H. Firth, Mrs. J. F. Andrew, Mrs. A. Mara, G. S. Lord and Mrs. K. W. Reikie were hostesses at a mother and daughter party in compliment held at the home of Mrs. Firth and the bride-to-be was presented with a picture.

On Saturday, Mrs. John Calder and Mrs. Lorne Ingle were joint hostesses at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Calder, and last week, Miss Lillian Shore and Miss Zella Oliver entertained at a dinner party at the Corona hotel, when Miss Edwards received a gift of chinaware.

Winnipeggers Argue About Girl Cadets

WINNIPEG, Feb '27. — (CP) — Winnipeggers are divided in their opinions on the advisability of having a girl cadet corps. Those in favor of the idea like it because it makes girls smarter and gives them better deportment. Those against the corps don't like it because of the militaristic angle.

Recently the inter-service cadet committee meeting in Winnipeg announced that it was in favor of girl cadet corps in secondary schools and would forward a recommendation to Ottawa.

A housewife believed that the corps is a "splendid" idea. "I think it's something like the Germans, of course we don't want that, but it's good training."

"There is no point in it," said a Winnipeg garageman. "Health training and citizenship, yes, but I don't see why they need military training."

The principal of a school which has a girl cadet corps was in favor of the idea. "The girls' deportment and everything is so much improved."

The Greater Winnipeg area alone had 15 schools which formed part of their cadet program. Some teachers are being assisted by members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps in organizing training for the girls.

So far this training of girl cadets is unauthorized and no government grant is allotted to it, though girl cadets are eligible to fire in the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association competitions.

[illegible] they had studied the idea more thoroughly.

WILL PRESIDE AT TWO-DAY MEETING—Mrs. E. C. Pardee, provincial commissioner of the Canadian Girl Guide Association, who will preside at the two-day annual provincial meeting of the association to be held Friday and Saturday of this week in the Macdonald hotel. More than 88 delegates from Edmonton and other sections of the province will attend. Climax of the convention will be a dinner of 100 covers at the hotel on Saturday at 6:30 p.m. when D. E. Cameron, librarian at the University of Alberta, will be the speaker.

VON Makes 6,038 Visits

Victorian Order of Nurses made 6,038 visits to more than 1,100 patients in their homes during 1944, according to Mrs. W. J. Sellhorn, supervisor of the VON in Edmonton.

The supervisor explained that the nurses made 200 more visits to expectant mothers in 1944 than they did in 1943. The two cars used by the VON, travelled 20,000 miles.

There was a total attendance of 982 mothers-to-be at the Friday pre-natal and post-natal classes held each week in the YWCA club rooms. Average attendance increased from 14 in 1943 to 20 in each class in 1944.

Visits to families of men in the armed forces, including British war brides, and to families of American servicemen stationed here, have increased in the past year.

100 BRANCHES

Mrs. Sellhorn explained that today there are 100 branches of the VON in Canada with head office in Ottawa, and 400 nurses are employed. The VON, she said, was organized for the purpose of providing an efficient home nursing service for every man, woman and child in Canada, irrespective of colour, creed, race or financial circumstances.

Of the 6,038 visits made in 1944, 52 per cent were free visits.

Mrs. Sellhorn said the VON is vitally interested in assisting to train public health nurses and during the year 35 students observed the work of the VON nurse.

DEMONSTRATIONS

Talks and demonstrations of the work have been given to classes at the various hospitals in the city, at the University, and to other interested groups. The nursing staff includes: Mrs. Sellhorn, supervisor; Miss Doris Renwick, senior nurse, and Miss Nina Sage, junior nurse. Mrs. R. H. Chisholm is office assistant.

The Edmonton branch of the VON was formed in 1909, thus completing 36 years of service here. Mrs. J. H. Wildman is president of the VON board in Edmonton. There are 36 members on the board.

The VON is a member of the Community Chest and the canvass last year was directed by Mrs. R. D. Watts. All members assisted with the enterprise.

The nursing staff is maintained by financial assistance, allocations of special gifts and comforts for the sick from various sources.

House Told Old Age Pensions Are Just 'Camouflaged Loans'

Stripped of all camouflage, the present old-age pension is simply an old-age loan, Dr. J. L. Robinson (SC, Medicine Hat), declared in the Legislature Monday afternoon.

"The time is ripe to make the old-age pension a pension in reality instead of being merely a recoverable loan," Dr. Robinson stated. He condemned the pension "means test" as discriminatory, "a penalty on sober and thrifty habits and good citizenship."

"Just how the monthly advance to the old folks ever came to be known as an 'old age pension' is something I have never been quite able to understand," the Medicine Hat member stated in his address. "I have always considered an advance of money, made with the understanding that it will be returned at 5 per cent. interest, was a loan, not a pension.

EMBODIED IN ACT

"The loan feature of this so-called pension is embodied in section 9 of the Dominion Old Age Pension Act."

Dr. Robinson quoted the following from the first part of this section: "A pension authority shall be entitled to recover out of the estate of any deceased pensioner, as a debt due by the pensioner to such authority, the sum of the pension payments made to such pensioners from time to time, together with interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum compounded annually."

"Stripped of all its camouflage, the old age pension stands revealed as the old age loan," Dr. Robinson charged. "No claim for recovery is made where the net value of the estate does not exceed $2,000.

"A wrong principle, however, cannot be worked out justly . . . the elimination of the means test and the granting of a pension instead of making a loan would do much for the peace of mind of our old folks."

The speaker referred to a resolution on old age pensions passed by the Legislature at its 1944 session. The resolution called for a raise in pension to $50 a month, and lowering of the age limit to 60 years.

IRRIGATION DISCUSSED

Dr. Robinson discussed irrigation at some length, stating farmers and ranchers of the south-east part of the province regard extension and development of irrigation resources as most important.

Two proposed irrigation schemes were discussed, the St. Mary and Milk River project and the Canada Land and Irrigation extensions. "There is widespread public demand for the earliest possible development of these water resources," Dr. Robinson said.

The St. Mary and Milk River project would employ 600 men for 10 years, and would give permanent work to 175 persons, the speaker stated. In the case of the Canada Land and Irrigation extensions, employment would be provided for 500 men for three years, while permanent maintenance work would be given to 100 men.

The St. Mary project would provide homes for an estimated 3,500 farm families, or approximately 18,375 persons, and would increase urban population by 12,000, the speaker stated. The Canada Land and Irrigation extensions would increase rural population by 8,500, in addition to an urban population increase of 6,000.

"It is estimated that the St. Mary's and Milk River development would be very close to $15,000,000, while that of the Canada Land and Irrigation extension would be close to $4,000,000," said Dr. Robinson.

EQUITABLE FORMULA

He suggested the Dominion and provincial governments should work out an equitable formula on irrigation construction cost, in order to arrive at a basis to begin work on the projects.

Dr. Robinson also dealt with the post-war tourist industry as it will affect Alberta. He urged construction of hard-surfaced roads to induce tourist traffic from the United States. "We must build roads, not barriers," members were told.

"If we build first-class arterial tourist highways, the United States tourists will gladly pay for them," Dr. Robinson continued. "If we build a poor type of highway, our Alberta taxpayers will pay for it, and the United States tourist will return home "cussing" our highway system and with a determination never to risk our highways again. Good highways are a provincial assets, but poor ones are a liability."

The speaker said an educational program will be necessary to bring about a thriving tourist business, as public opinion must be behind the government in efforts to establish a tourist business on a sound foundation.

Also necessary was an extensive advertising program for the post-war years, he added.

unit in England for nearly two years, was met at the station by his wife and two children.

Pte. F. Lepretre, of Dixonville, in the Peace River Block, served overseas since 1942 with the Regina Rifles. He was wounded three times since D-Day, being hit in the legs, arms and hands with shrapnel.

He said the Regina Rifles have been nicknamed the "Regina Johns" because a large percentage of its personnel come from Edmonton, Calgary and other western cities.

A rancher before enlisting, he hopes to get a job as fire ranger after discharge.

Most men in the Canadian Army were disappointed over the progress of the war for some time after the invasion, he said.

"We figured on D-Day that it would be all over in two months. But things were going pretty good when I left. The Germans are good soldiers, however, and their reinforcements always seemed to be well trained. That was not always the case with our reinforcements," Pte. Lapretre said.

WIDESPREAD ACTION

Pte. K. M. Baldry of Clear Prairie went over in 1941 with the Calgary Highlanders and transferred to The Loyal Edmonton Regiment in December of 1943. He say action in Sicily and Italy and was twice wounded. He lost a brother in the battle of Vino Ridge where he was himself wounded. He has one leg in a cast.

Sgt. C. H. Vaughan of Onoway was an original with The Loyal Edmonton Regiment. His sisters came to Edmonton to greet him.

Pte. E. W. Kellie of High Prairie served with the Calgary Highlanders in France.

Pte. J. L. Simpson, Fort St. John, was with the Loyal Edmontons while Pte. F. Maudy, 9720 80 avenue was with the PPCLI in Italy.

Pte. T. M. Stark, Fairview, of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment, was twice wounded in Italy.

All wounded men had high praise for the Canadian Army Medical services.

Pte. P. D. Zwick, South Edmonton, served with the Seaforths and was wounded at the battle of the Moro river in Italy.

Pte. W. Plews, Conklin, served with the Calgary Highlanders and Pte. F. Bentley of South Edmonton was 15 months with the RCASC.

"Edmonton is the best city in the world. If I didn't believe that I wouldn't come here," he said. Wounded at Caen with shrapnel he declared he would "never forget his experiences there."

Spr. H. Koloch, Boyle, served with the RCE in France, Belgium and Holland and was wounded Dec. 15 last. He was overseas four and a half years.

Motoring to Leduc to meet the returning servicemen early Tuesday were First Vice-President J. C. Macdonald and Secretary-Manager W. J. Williams, MLA, Edmonton Branch No. 24 Canadian Legion BESL and Sgt. Vera Shirley, CWAC.

Along with Legion auxiliary service personnel who distributed cigarettes, the party boarded the train at Leduc and chatted with the returnees during the remainder of their journey home.

At Edmonton the soldiers were taken to the Canadian Legion Welcome Home hut where they had refreshments and were greeted by representatives of the Canadian Red Cross, the Salvation Army and other auxiliary services.

Additional returned men are expected to arrive on the afternoon train from Calgary Tuesday afternoon and again Tuesday at 11:05 p.m.

MANY DISAPPOINTED AT STATION MONDAY

Disappointment written all over their faces, several score parents, wives and friends left the CPR depot Monday night. They had gone to the station, in some cases several hours early, anticipating the return of more than 30 of their fighting sons from the battle lines of Europe.

Through train delays in the southern part of the province, the bulk of the men didn't arrive. Instead, the war-marked soldiers came in on Tuesday morning's train from Calgary. A few were straggling in on later trains.

For the few who did return, however, Edmonton's greeting was as hearty as ever. The half dozen or more men in khaki were the centres of attraction with people they'd never seen before, both on the dark station platform and in the better illuminated Welcome Home Hut near the depot.

PARATROOPER BACK

The "big story" as far as Monday night's arrivals were concerned, was Sgt. Jack Parfett, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Parfett of Bruce, Alta. Wearing the ribbon of the American Silver Star, the paratroop-winged veteran of the First Canadian-American Special Service Force was greeted by a father who beamed with pride when he looked at his 24-year-old fighting son.

"I'd rather not say anything about it," Sgt. Parfett said when reporters asked him about his award. Over a steaming cup of coffee he bashfully confessed that he'd received the award for "getting a buddy out of a tight spot."

In reluctant starts the story was revealed. The scene of the action was Cassino's no man's land, where under heavy enemy fire, lay a wounded Montreal soldier. Two Allied fighters were killed attempting to rescue him. Finally, Parfett ("I was asking to get my head blown off") cut through the withering fire, lifted the wounded man across his shoulder and took him back to the safety of his own lines.

ON ACTIVE SERVICE.—OS. J. Bruce Hodgkinson, RCNVR, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Hodgkinson, 9545 109 avenue, and Dawson Creek. A former member of the Edmonton Sea Cadets, he is on active service, having left for a west coast station on Feb. 18. Born at Edson Dec. 28, 1926, he came with his family to this city in 1928. He was educated at McCauley Public and Victoria High schools. His only brother, Tpr. J. D. Hodgkinson, serving with the Lord Strathcona's Horse (RC) has been overseas since 1941.

TO CONTINUE STUDIES

Sgt. Parfett joined the Canadian Army on leaving school. When the war is over, he wants to further his education by taking advantage of the government scheme to assist veterans through university.

A brother, Lance Cpl. Jim Parfett, signaller, is serving with the Eighth Army in Italy.

Pte. Emile Angers of the Canadian Ordnance Corps, whose home is at Clyde, Alta., was lavish in his praise for medical treatment received by Canadians in both Italy and England. Pte. Angers, thin-faced and moustached, had served in Italy for several months when he contracted diphtheria and paralysis. He was hospitalized in the former Fascist stronghold, and in England, for five months. He expects to remain in Canada indefinitely.

Prior to the war, the soldier was engaged in mixed farming near Clyde. "I'm hoping to start a farm of my own after the war," he said.

"It's going to be great to eat somybody else's cooking for a change," smiled Fred Whyatt of Busby, who enlisted originally as a gunner and served in England as a cook. Rfmn. Paul Bruchkowsky of Willowlea, near Lloydminster, described the war as a "big mixup". Overseas a year, he saw service in France subsequent to the D-Day operations. Both are hoping to get into agriculture after the war.

HAPPY REUNION

When Pte. John J. Ferguson of Cadomin leaped off the still moving train and was pivotted around violently before he got his balance, he had enough hearts in people's mouths to warrant any number of attentive MO's. It all ended well, however, when he and his wife got together for the biggest reunion of their lives.

Loaded down with kitbags and kiddies whose questions rolled off "Uncle Andy's" back like water off a duck, CSM. Andy Brass hiked away from the depot as fast as two legs wor't take him. Too fast to be interviewed, in fact. But he looked well. And very happy.

Other soldiers from northern Alberta scheduled to arrive Tuesday are: Cpl. H. B. Atkinson, Goodfore; Pte. A. W. Bobroske, Marwayne; Pte. E. G. Fitzgerald, Winfield; Pte. T. S. Kwasniak, Redcliff; Pte. H. V. Lindstrom, Falun; Pte. D. Kwasny, Sprucefield; Pte. W. Mantie, Wetaskiwin.

Man Is Injured By Automobile

Frederick W. Williams, 10855 97 street, received injuries to the right shoulder and right leg about 7:50 p.m. Monday, after being knocked out of his wheel chair and into the street by a passing autoist, according to city police. The injured man was given medical attention but was not taken to hospital.

Driver of the car, according to police, was Frank Fermanuik, 10949 82 street, who said he was operating his car on 97 street between 108 and 108A avenues behind another auto.

Four Edmontonians Back From Overseas

Four Edmontonians are in a group of RCAF personnel returning from overseas due to arrive here Thursday morning.

They are: Flt.-Lt. H. A. Doherty, 10642 83 avenue; Flt.-Lt. C. O. Gordon, Edmonton (no address); FO. H. W. Shopland, 10229 114 street; LAW. E. J. Stiles, Grande Prairie; FO. M. C. Stiles, Grande Prairie, and FO. V. R. Touchie, Edmonton (also no address).

Three Officers Delay Return To Homes Here

Three Edmonton officers who didn't return to the city Monday night as scheduled were Lt. W. A. Law, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Law; Lt. Lloyd Abram, son of Mrs. J. M. Abram, 10845 80 avenue; and Lt. W. M. Grant, husband of Mrs. Ruth Grant, 10004 114 street.

Lt. Law, according to word received here, stopped off at Toronto to visit friends and was expected to entrain for the west Tuesday night. Veteran of the D-Day operations in France, he was wounded in the chest and arm last July 9 and since that time has been hospitalized overseas.

WITH REGINA RIFLES

The officer was born at Davidson, Sask., and joined the Regina Rifles in 1941, proceeding overseas in the fall of the same year. He returned to Canada two years later, received his commission at Gordon Head, B.C., and went back overseas about a year ago.

Lt. Grant has also been overseas twice in the present conflict. He was posted overseas for the first time in 1942 and trained in England for about 11 months. Returned to Canada as a survivor of the peak of the German blitz against England, he received his commission and was then stationed for several months at Currie barracks in Calgary.

He went back overseas last year, transferring to the Westminster Regiment at that time. He is expected to arrive in Edmonton at the end of this week. His wife will join him in Calgary Tuesday. Prior to enlisting, he worked at the Macdonald's Consolidated firm here.

Lt. Abram saw a great deal of service with the British Army in this war. Enlisting in January, 1940, he was stationed for some time at the Prince of Wales armory. After his commissioning, he was among the Canadian officers who volunteered for service with the British Army, and in this capacity he went into Normandy with the British liberation army.

RECEIVED CABLE

It was Mother's Day last year that the officer's mother received a cable from him announcing his safe arrival in the Old Country. He was wounded shortly after D-Day and since then has been stationed in England. He transferred to the Canadian Army to facilitate his return to this country. Prior to enlisting he was employed at the firm of Meials Ltd., here. He is expected to reach Edmonton Tuesday night.

Sudetens Achieve Record Hog Grades

Members of the Sudeten settlement at Tupper Creek, B.C., acheived what is believed to be a record for Canada in the high grades gained in hogs marketed from the settlement during 1944.

According to a report by W. Wanka, manager of the settlement, hogs marketed graded 33.3 per cent A and 44.8 per cent B classification for a total average percentage of 78.1 per cent. This compares with 30 per cent grading A and 40 per cent B in Ontario, the highest in grade A Selects in Canada. The average grading in Manitoba and Alberta was 26 per cent A and 45 per cent B.

T. O. F. Herzer, general manager Canada Colonization Association, to whom this report had been submitted, stated that "it was extremely gratifying that the bacon hog production in the settlement had reached such an excellent standard."

It was reported that 44 of the settlers had paid in full for their holdings, 29 have title registered in their names, and 11 have made application for registration of transfers. Payments made by the settlers during 1944 on land agreements amounted to $16,343 reducing their indebtedness under the settlement plan to $11,832.85.

Post-War Farm Markets, Prices Are Discussed

Agriculture does not stand alone in the group of economic forces but is dependent upon what goes on in industry, Prof. H. Van Vliet told members of the Appraisal Institute of Canada, when he addressed the Monday afternoon session of their three-day annual meeting being held in the Macdonald hotel. A faculty member of the University of Saskatchewan, the guest speaker's subject was "Post-War Markets and Prices."

"Contrary to popular belief a dollar in the farmer's pocket is not the answer to our economic ills," he said. "The position of agriculture depends not only on the demand for food but rather on the kind of food, and the kind of food depends on the purchasing power of the nation."

FUTURE UNCERTAIN

Conditions of the post-war period are still largely unknown, the speaker said, and he would make no attempt to forecast what the situation would be. He outlined the various factors involved in the outlook for agriculture after the war and assessed their significance.

A post-war boom period would be explosive, the speaker said, and would probably seriously jeopardize our future stability and world peace. "Our major hope for the future is to capture active business conditions and maintain them against pressure of expansion on one hand and deflation on the other."

The focus is on wheat he said and during the post-war period there will probably be a restoration of the balance of grain to livestock prices.

The war limited wheat exports but on the other hand opened up markets for livestock, dairy products and poultry and on the domestic market there has been almost a doubling of the money demand going into agricultural products, he said.

SEES FALLING OFF

In all probability there will be a slight falling off in both these markets during the post-war period, Prof. Van Vliet said, for European primary agriculture is in amazingly good condition and it is likely nations will build up their livestock from surviving herds.

In the domestic market, even if it is possible to maintain the present level of employment, there will probably be a slight decrease in the demand, the speaker said, because agricultural products will have to compete with other civilian commodities.

There is a need for exercising close control because of the fine balance between scarcity and surplus in agriculture, the speaker said, and a slight tipping of the balance has a tremendous effect on the agricultural economy.

Delegates attending the Monday afternoon session also heard an address by Dr. F. A. Wyatt of the University of Alberta. His subject was "The Place of Wooded Soils in Future Agriculture".

P. C. Naismith and H. D. Dunlop were chairmen of the afternoon meetings.

Portugal Denies Any "Suggestion" She Declare War

LISBON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Government sources indicated last night that Portugal had received no suggestion from the "Big Three" that she declare war on the Axis and participate in the United Nations conference at San Francisco, and she expected none.

They said a declaration of war by a neutral country against "a defeated country only in time to get a part of the loot was the attitude Italy assumed regarding France" in 1940.

These sources said, "The advantages of taking a seat at the San Francisco conference could never justify the sacrifice of national dignity."

ARE YOU GOOD AT FIGURES?

9 BLOOD DONATIONS mean 1 CHANCE TO LIVE

Answers to your Questions:—

Who is eligible?

Any man or woman in normal good health between the ages of 18 and 50 can donate blood.

Will it hurt?

No. The very slight sensation is usually not noticed at all.

Will it harm me?

No. The complete medical check-up by the qualified examining physicians at the clinics can be your assurance that the donation can do you no harm. The clear records of thousands of many-time blood donors bear this out.

How long does it take?

A very short time—about 45 minutes in the Clinic is the average time for the whole procedure, including the physical examination and registration, then making the donation and enjoying refreshments afterwards. The actual donation takes only a few minutes.

What can I eat before?

Eat nothing containing fat (including milk or cream) for at least six hours before making a donation. You may have fruit, or fruit juices, tomato juice, toast without butter, black coffee or tea without cream or milk, cereals with honey or maple syrup.

What shall I do now?

Telephone your local blood donor clinic—or even drop a note in the mail—register your name as a donor and settle a time convenient to you for an appointment. In a day or so you will receive a card through the mail confirming the time of your appointment for a medical check-up and donation.

IT TAKES nine civilian blood donations to give one injured soldier, sailor or airman an initial transfusion . . . a chance to live!

That's why so many blood donors are needed by the Red Cross . . . why there's an urgent call from every blood donor clinic across Canada for more and more civilians to do their share. There is a shortage of serum.

If you are now a blood donor, visit your clinic again as soon as possible, and next time, take one or two new donors with you to show them how simple it is.

If you have not yet answered this vital call, get in touch with your local clinic immediately. No true Canadian would deny any one of our gallant fighting men a chance to live.

Would you?

Before the Magistrate

Norman Porter, Coronation, was ordered to pay a fine of $100 or serve six months' imprisonment, Monday, when he pleaded guilty before Magistrate L. R. Jackson to contributing to juvenile delinquency. "This is a serious offense and becoming altogether too frequent," said the magistrate. "Girls should have the protection of men and not be hounded by them."

Dwight Hurlburt, pleading guilty to wilful damage, was fined $20 and costs of $5 damages or 30 days in jail. A second count, of attempted break-and-enter into the Empire jewelry store, Edmonton, was withdrawn.

Janet Gray, pleading guilty to theft of a parcel of meat from an Edmonton store, was fined $5 or seven days. The meat was valued at $2.25, the court was told.

Robert McGrath, Edmontonian, who as his counsel told Magistrate L. R. Jackson Tuesday morning "had a record", was remanded to stand trial at the next sitting of supreme court on a charge of breaking and entering the Norwood Service Station. Bail was set at $5,000. On a second count, of illegal possession of liquor, McGrath was fined $20 or 30 days.

Five witnesses were called to give evidence. Approximately $10 in currency allegedly was stolen from the garage.

Fred Riedlinger, charged with contributing to delinquency, was fined $50 or two months. His female companion, mother of two small children, was placed on a year's suspended sentence. Riedlinger, the court was told, has six children of his own.

L. F. Rogers of Edmonton, and R. Hildebrand of Hercules, were penalized to the extent of $25 or one month's imprisonment on charges of breach of industrial control regulations. Both accused, it was stated, had licenses which permitted them to travel about in the 35-mile area provided for. They were found out hunting big game, for which they had not been issued gasoline. One of the accused was 154 miles outside the legal limit of 35 miles from his residence, police said.

Quinten A. Emil on an illegal possession of liquor charge was fined $20 or 30 days.

Carl E. Olsen, charged with vagrancy, was assessed $5 or 10 days.

Gets Three Years On Drug Charge

CALGARY, Feb. 27—(CP)—A bride of a little more than a week wept in police court here yesterday as she heard her husband, 23-year-old Lloyd Badger of Saskatoon, sentenced to three years in penitentiary for being in possession of morphine.

Mrs. Helen Badger and her husband were married in Saskatoon while they were free on bail pending the hearing of the charges of being in possession of the drug. Mrs. Badger and her brother, Charles Prudent, also of Saskatoon, who faced the same charge, were dismissed yesterday by Magistrate D. C. Sinclair.

The three were arrested in a Calgary hotel Jan. 31 when police found $4,000 worth of drugs in their room.

Badger was also fined $200 or an additional 30 days in penitentiary on the narcotics charge. He was given a two-months' sentence on a charge of failing to notify authorities of a change in address.

Council Names Slate Candidates

A regular meeting of the Edmonton Labor Council of the Canadian Congress of Labor was held in the Imperial Bank building on Monday. John Lenglet, secretary-treasurer, said the brief dealt in the main with the Industrial Conciliation and Arbitration Act. The sections dealing with certification of a bargaining agent and unfair practices were unsatisfactory and amendments were sought so that Labor would receive fair treatment.

The meeting nominated officers for the coming term, as follows: for president, Thomas C. Roberts, Local No. 14 Brotherhood of Express Employees; for vice-president, John Plenderleith, Local 233, United Packing House Workers of America, L. Davison, Div. 31, CB of RE, Jan Lakeman, Amalgamated Building Workers of Canada; for secretary-treasurer, John Lenglet, United Packing House Workers of America; board members, Peter Collins, United Mine Workers of America, W. Myers UPWA, Mr. Orn, Amalgamated Building Workers of America. The election will take place at the next regular meeting of the council, Monday, March 12.

Winnipeg Rye Trading Is Dull

WINNIPEG, Feb. 27—(CP)—Trading in rye was dull today on the Winnipeg grain exchange and selling by commission houses was enough to keep futures below previous closing levels for most of the session.

May closed ½ higher at $1.21½, July ⅛ higher to unchanged and October ⅛ lower $1.13¼.

Small quantities of oats were acquired by exporters for shipment at the opening of navigation.

Indications that some wheat may have been obtained for relief purposes in liberated countries were given by traders but they lacked confirmation.

Retail to consumers: A large, 43; A medium, 42; A pullet, 35; grade B, 38; grade C, 27.

This egg market continues to hold a steady position. A price advance went into effect for grade C, ranging from 3c to 4c per dozen. Supplies of this grade are very light. Receipts show a decrease of 3 per cent from the previous week, undoubtedly due to a temporary cold snap. Seven carlots of A large and medium exported to the United Kingdom, three carlots of A pullets and B's delivered to the Special Products Board for local drying, two large shipments of A large went to Northern Projects, one of which was oil processed and packed in individual dozen cartons. Quality of arrivals continues to show high percentage of grade A.

This Week In Farming

Every Tuesday by Stanley A. Williams

Beekeepers Receive Warning Of Serious Sugar Shortage

Alberta beekeepers were warned Tuesday by W. G. leMaistre, provincial apiarist, that unless they are registered with the agriculture department of the provincial agriculture department, they will not receive sugar for their bees.

Due to the critical sugar situation, it is necessary to reduce to the minimum the amount of sugar used for feeding bees. Honey is the natural bee food, and sugar is used in the spring only when honey is scarce.

Applications for sugar to feed bees should be sent to the provincial apiarist. Application forms are being forwarded to all beekeepers registered with the apiculture branch, Alberta department of agriculture, Edmonton. Since honey is a rationed commodity, beekeepers are also required by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board to register with their local ration boards. This registration is necessary whether or not honey is sold.

Registration with the department of agriculture must be done annually. Registration with the ration board is required once only. There are no charges for registration.

WEED LOSES

Weedy farms not only affect the general welfare of farmers in Alberta but may become a national problem, warns A. M. Wilson, provincial government field crops commissioner.

Weed loses on many fields cause reductions in yield of 25% or more. The dockage on grain delivered to elevators may be anywhere from 1 to 50 per cent, additional cultivation costs of weeds may be from 10 to 40 per cent. The total of these losses may cost Alberta farmers up to $40,000,000 a year. In comparing one farm with another in the same district it can be shown that by timely and efficient cultivation and by the proper use of implements, losses through weeds can be considerably reduced.

For annual weeds, a program to provide for spring cultivation prior to seeding, or light cultivation after seeding has proved most effective. Summerfallow will not achieve its purpose if left until the many seeds have ripened, or if seeds are plowed under to remain viable until a more opportune time. Perennial weeds can be more effectively controlled if cultivation is carried on during the heat of the summer and continued until freeze-up. All too frequently, perennials are allowed to mature seeds undistured, or summerfallow cultivated until harvest and then neglected.

NEW PAMPHLET

A new pamphlet, "The Control of Wild Oats in Alberta" by H. J. Mather, supervisor, soil conservation and weed control in the agriculture department, is now available for distribution. Those interested should apply to the department for Circular No. 71.

CONGESTION OF CATTLE MARTS

Quality of cattle marketed has considerable effect on congestion at Canadian markets, according to the Industrial and Development Council of Canadian Meat Packers, Toronto.

The council in a bulletin stated in part: Recent congestion at Canadian cattle markets has given rise to the impression in some quarters that the packing plants have in some manner fallen down on their job of handling cattle.

QUALITY OF CATTLE

To a considerable extent the congestion has been caused by the quality of the cattle which are being marketed. The gradings of the cattle sold on the Toronto stock yards for eight weeks in October and November indicate that only 14.5 per cent were choice and good steers, heifers and fed calves; a similar calculation for the Union Stock Yards at Winnipeg is 13.9 per cent. There has been no glut of good cattle on any market; such offerings have been in demand and have been readily absorbed.

READILY SALABLE

Because cow beef, even of good quality, is not now as readily salable in Canada as formerly, it has to be largely exported, which entails additional labor in preparation and refrigeration.

Medium, plain and common steers and heifers, as well as cutters and canners, for the most part must be boned and boxed for export before an outlet can be found. It is true that Britain will take large quantities of beef, but boning the lower quality cattle takes much extra time and labor in the plants and adds materially to plant operations.

FARM SHELTERBELT

Farmers wishing to plant a shelterbelt must be forehanded in making application for trees, according to E. S. Hallman, supervisor, farmstead planning service, department of agriculture.

The Dominion forestry station at Indian Head, Saskatchewan, supplies Caragan, Green Ash, American Elm and Russian Poplar trees free of charge. Evergreen trees cost one cent each. Applications on printed forms must be submitted by the end of February. The land must be summerfallowed and the trees are supplied the following spring. If trees are required for 1945, application should be made to Indian Head before the end of this month.

In view of the permanence of trees, make sure that they are planted in the right place. Now is a good time to make plans. A plan of the whole farmstead should be carefully drafted on paper to a scale say, 20 yards to the inch. Only in this way can the area to be enclosed and the location of the various plantings be determined. Farmers who desire assistance in planning their home grounds should consult the Farmstead Planning Service, Alberta department of agriculture, Edmonton.

ERADICATE WARBLE FLY

"Eradicate the Warble Fly" is the theme of a message issued this week by the Alberta Livestock Co-Operative.

"Last year farmers and ranchers did a grand job toward eradicating the warble fly," the message states. "The job is not complete. Farmers must continue their work, and the rest of their neighbors must cooperate. The farmer who has a few head of cattle can treat them by hand for the nominal cost of two to three cents per head. This treatment should be repeated every three weeks until all the grubs are killed. Consult the district agriculturist in the area, and it is then up to the stock owner to coordinate a plan to complete the job this year. Through treatment, warble-free cattle will result in contented cattle, which in turn will mean more beef and warble free hides.

BUTTER AND CHEESE

According to advice received from D. H. McCallum, dairy commissioner, Alberta creamery butter production for January amounted to 1,654,067 pounds, a reduction of approximately 4 per cent as compared to the same month of 1944. All Canada shows an increase of 5.2 per cent for January, due mainly to increases in the eastern provinces.

Factory cheese production was up 85,000 pounds or 51.8 per cent over January, 1944, although during the same month Canada as a whole was down in cheese production.

SEED TREATMENT

Organic mercury dusts are definitely increasing in favour as a means of controlling certain diseases affecting cereal grains. In addition to controlling the same diseases as formaldehyde they will also control the seed-borne root rots of all cereals. Like formaldehyde, the organic mercury dusts will not control loose smut of wheat or barley. An advantage in the use of organic mercury dusts is that they will not cause such a reduction in the germinating strength of seeds, particularly wheat and oats, as does the formaldehyde treatment.

In experiments conducted during the last season at Edmonton and Lethbridge by the Dominion laboratory of plant pathology, the formaldehyde seed treatment of sound healthy wheat reduced the emergence of seedlings 36 and 47 per cent., as well as reducing the yield one-half and two-thirds respectively over that for the organic mercury dusts. In the treatment of oats and barley, formaldehyde seed treatment causes some reduction in emergence and yield of oats, but usually very little in the case of barley.

Present recommendations are therefore in favour of treatment of seed wheat, oats and barley with organic mercury dusts. Such treatment is good insurance against losses from covered smuts of wheat, oats and barley as well as loose smut of oats. In addition, the grower is assured of the prevention of loss from the seed-borne, root rot organisms.

Great Northern Railway Seeking To Recover Bonds

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 28—(AP)—F. J. Gavin, president of the Great Northern Railway, yesterday invited holders of four different series of the company's general mortgage bonds to sell them to the company. Issues involved include series B 5½s, C 5s, D 4½s and E 4½s. Holders are requested to submit their tenders for sale to the company's agent, the First National Bank of the City of New York, before March 14.
